

Japanese Now Within Sight Of Nanking's Ancient Walls

Army Spokesman Predicts Fighting Tues-

Is Sunk

Shanghai—(AP)—Japanese said today the vanguard of their forces was within sight of the ancient walls of Nanking and had occupied the country home of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in the hills outside the capital.

Japanese correspondents with the forces reported Japanese troops had entered the mausoleum of Sun Yat-Sen, father of the Chinese republic.

A Japanese army spokesman announced the advance tonight. He declared there probably would be fighting within the city tomorrow. He announced also that Japanese had advanced toward Wuhu, Yangtze river port about 60 miles southwest of Nanking, and toward Chinkiang, where the grand canal and Yangtze merge about 40 miles east of Nanking.

Claim Boom Broken
The Japanese also announced they had broken the boom across the Yangtze at Kiangyin and battleships were steaming upstream to bombard Chinkiang.

Japanese planes, meanwhile, were reported making heavy attacks on an allegedly bewildered Chinese retreat both from Nanking and Wuhu. Chinese sources reported the 32,720 Japanese battleship Nagato sunk by aerial bombs on the lower Yangtze between Tungchow and Fushen. Japanese discounted the report.

A Japanese embassy spokesman acknowledged that British consular authorities had made a telephonic report on the bombing of a British warship and two British merchantmen yesterday at Wuhu.

Three Britons Injured
He said, however, no question of a British protest or of demands for compensation had arisen. The spokesman added that Japanese authorities had no statement to make about the incident.

The commander of the British gunboat Ladybird and two other Britons were injured when Japanese planes raided the Wuhu waterfront yesterday.

Two British river steamers were hit. The 3,770-ton Tuck-Wo, belonging to the Indo-China Steam Navigation company, was set afire and was believed to be a total loss.

Officials of the company said they understood the Tuck-Wo had between 2,000 and 3,000 Chinese refugees aboard. She rammed into a British-owned landing hulk which was burned.

Total damage was estimated as about $500,000.

Reached Vessel
The crew of the other British ship, the 1,560-ton Tatung, owned by the China Navigation company, beached the vessel on the Yangtze shore after naval men helped get her out of danger.

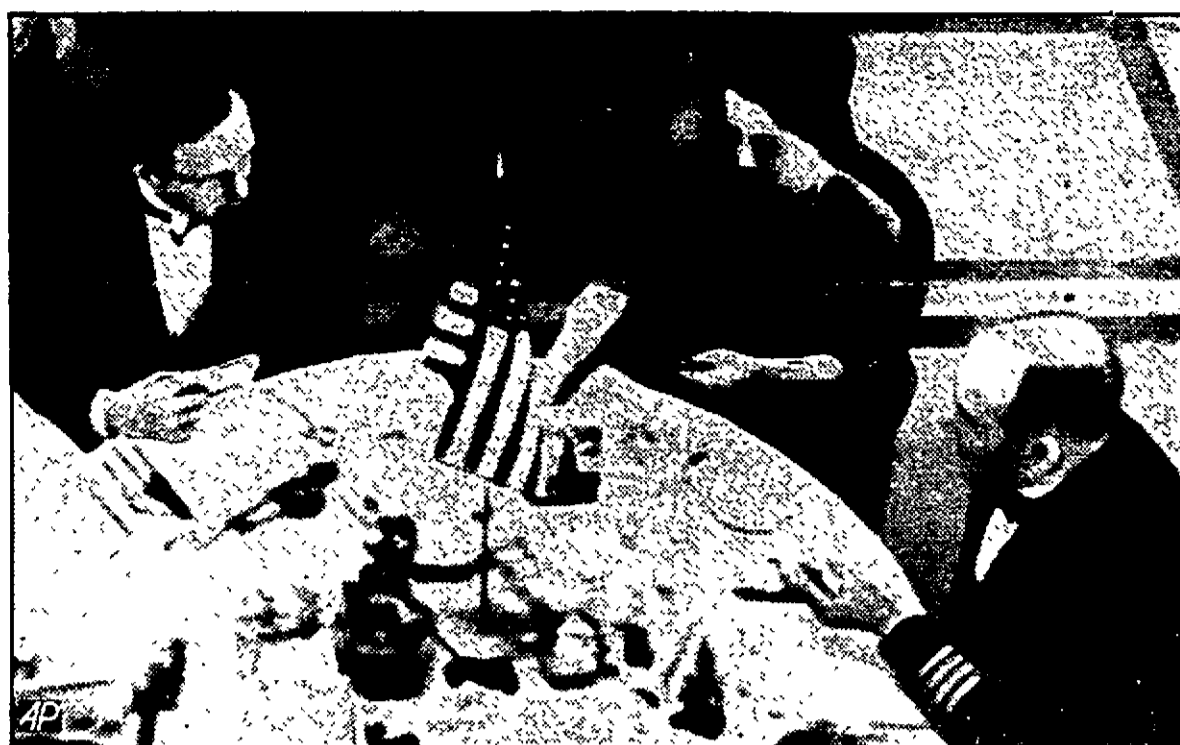

Although 24 Americans still were at Wuhu, none were injured. Japanese said only Chinese junks carrying Chinese troops were bombed. They explained the attacks were aimed at between 30,000 and 50,000 Chinese troops said to be retreating across the river in native craft.

The Japanese spokesman also disclaimed knowledge of the promulgation of a Japanese-created municipal government in Shanghai, although Chinese native newspapers announced the establishment of such a regime, allegedly under compulsion.

Japanese plans to set up a new, autonomous government for Shanghai were seen in the proclamation issued by Su Hsi-Wen announcing his assumption of the duties of mayor of "The Great Wall."

Americans reported still at Wuhu included 14 women, four children and six men. Among them were Beth Okey, Cassville, Wis.

LINDBERGH'S RETURN TO UNITED STATES FOR VISIT

Appearing on the passenger list as "Mr. and Mrs. Gregory," Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived in New York on a surprise visit to the United States, leaving their two sons in England. This picture of them with Captain James E. Roberts of the liner President Harding, aboard which the Lindberghs sailed, was made at dinner during the voyage by a ship photographer. The Lindberghs were guests at the captain's table.

Lindberghs in Seclusion at Morrow Estate in New Jersey After Secret Voyage; Visit in U. S. to be "Brief"

Travel From England
As 'Mr. and Mrs.
Gregory'

Englewood, N. J. —(AP)—A couple believed to be Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, home from a two year exile abroad, left the Morrow estate by automobile today and sped across the George Washington bridge into New York. Observers at the entrance to the estate of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, saw a black sedan leave the grounds. In the back seat were a man and woman, whom observers felt sure were the "Lone Eagle" and his wife. The woman wore black glasses while the man was slumped over in the seat in effort to avoid recognition. A chauffeur was at the wheel.

Englewood, N. J. —(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh are home from a two-year exile abroad but the guarded acres of the Morrow estate close by the rim of the Hudson river's Palisades hold the secret of why they have come and how long they will stay.

The hero of American aviation and his wife, Anne, who has shared many notable flights with him, slipped unheralded into New York yesterday morning aboard the United States liner President Harding.

They had sailed from Southampton, Nov. 27 under the innognito of "Mr. and Mrs. Gregory" for their first trip to their native land since they went to England in desperate search of the seclusion they felt they could not find here—just 16 days short of two years ago.

A waiting car whisked them from the Manhattan dock to the 32-acre estate of Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's 64-year-old mother, and the only word of authoritative status concerning their plans came from a ship's officer who said: "Their visit will be brief. They plan to return abroad immediately after Christmas."

Other than that, there was a bubbling spring of conjecture in a desert of fact: opinions that the Lindberghs' trip might be a prelude to ending the exile self-imposed in an effort to rebuild the lives shattered by the kidnapping and death of their first born son, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.; theories that he might have come on a mission connected with the expansion of American aviation; even suggestions that he might be on an errand of science connected with development of the artificial heart of which he is co-inventor.

Guards patrolled the gateway to the quarter mile of winding driveway that led to the Morrow home only glimpsed from the main highway, even through denuded trees. Every caller was stopped, turned back. Messenger boys delivered literally bushels of telegrams, went away without replies.

The Lindberghs' two children did not accompany them and it was assumed that they either were at their parents' home in England or in Wales with their aunt, Mrs. Aubrey Morgan.

Mrs. Morrow, widow of a partner of J. P. Morgan, who has seen her husband and a daughter die and her family scatter in the last six years, has not seen the younger boy, Land Morrow Lindbergh, since he was born May 12, the day on which George VI was crowned king of England. Jon, now 5 years old, was in his father's arms when Lindbergh saluted the Statue of Liberty from the deck of the freighter American Importer two years ago on the trip that ended with the leasing of a rambling fourteenth century farmhouse, "Long Barn," in Kent.

Reporters and photographers met the President Harding expecting to find nothing more exciting than the members of the Czechoslovakia

Farmer and Son

Arc Found Slain

Bodies Discovered in Barn

Four Miles Northwest of Madison

Madison—(AP)—Hubert Learn, 56, a farmer living four miles northwest of here, and his son, Lowell, 21, were found shot to death today in a barn on the farm.

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. Learn who summoned Edger-ton firemen. They reported she was so incoherent with shock that she could not discuss the tragedy. Officials expressed the view it was a case of suicide and slaying.

Dane County Coroner Edward A. Fischer was called to investigate. Neighbors said that the elder Learn had been brooding for the last year since the death of his mother and that he had been bothered with financial worries.

The farm is in the town of Dunkirk on the Rock county line.

100 Arrested on Charges of Breaking

Blue Laws Passed in Colonial Times

Bellows Falls, Vt.—(AP)—The "sins" of their forefathers today weighed heavily upon the shoulders of Windham county residents. A blue Monday found at least 100 persons caught in the toils of a law laid down by Vermont's early settlers to ward off the "skulking redskin" and the "devil."

Investigators yesterday scribbled down their names as they went about the grim task of enforcing a blue law banning on the sabbath day "any secular business or employment except works of charity."

More might have joined those against whom State's Attorney Ernest F. Berry said he would seek warrants today in the "blue law crime wave." But weary police suffered an attack of writer's cramps as the day wore on.

Materials for WPA

To be Ordered at Once

Madison—(AP)—P. D. Flanner, state WPA administrator, announced today that orders will be placed at once for all materials necessary for the operation of WPA projects in this state for January, February and March.

He said the Wisconsin and other officials had been asked by Washington officials to estimate their requirements on the assumption that present WPA employment will not be decreased prior to next April 1.

Flanner said he will ask county and municipal officials to make advance purchases for the same period of materials they are required to furnish on projects.

He anticipated that additional allotments to cover purchases will be made by Washington as soon as the estimates are made.

CAUGHT AFTER CHASE

Prisoner Confesses Robberies in Illinois;
Guns Found in Car

LaCrosse—(AP)—A transient, Police Chief John B. Webber said yesterday, kidnaped one LaCrosse policeman and critically wounded another in a wild shooting affray and chase through the downtown section of the city.

The injured policeman, Joseph Donndelinger, 33, was given three blood transfusions yesterday as doctors fought desperately to save his life. He was shot four times, twice through the stomach, and once each through the right leg and arm.

The transient told police his name was Charles Kreibich, but admitted that was a false name after police had searched his car and found personal effects bearing the name of Floyd Wagener of Carrollton, Ill. Police said he told them he was Wagener. Webber said the man admitted robbing an insurance man and holding up a filling station in Illinois. He was shot three times in the forearm.

Went by Arterial
Donndelinger, riding in a squad car with Patrolman Granville Smith, stopped Kreibich when he failed to halt for an arterial street. Smith entered the car with Kreibich to drive to police headquarters, but when the transient arrived in front of the city hall, he pushed a gun against the officer and drove away, forcing Smith to direct him through the downtown district to the Mississippi river bridge leading to Minnesota.

Donndelinger picked up two other officers, Paul Snyder and James Christie, and took up the chase. Just before Kreibich reached the Minnesota end of the bridge, Donndelinger accelerated his car and rammed the fugitive's machine. The gun battle followed.

Robbed Insurance Man
Webber said Kreibich told him he had held up Floyd R. Robinson, a Chicago insurance man, in Carrollton, Ill., and robbed him of $10, and held up a filling station in an Illinois town, the name of which he said he did not remember.

In the captured man's automobile, Webber said, police found a rifle and a revolver besides a set of Illinois license plates, 1-539-350 and Wisconsin plates issued to a man named Peeme of Racine, whose first name Webber did not know. The police official said the auto bore license plates taken from a car owned by Ernest Jensen of LaCrosse.

LaCrosse police searched, meanwhile, for two men who fled LaCrosse yesterday morning in a stolen car, theorizing the pair might have been companions of Wagener, whose fingerprints are being checked.

The stolen car was the property of Woody Richeson of LaCrosse. It was found abandoned near Cashton yesterday.

Lawrence Flock, LaCrosse, told police he picked up the two men on the highway near the car and took them to Norwalk. They were later reported to have boarded the head end of an eastbound train at Kendall, leaving it at Elroy.

Descriptions were furnished by Flock.

Claims 'Moral Victory'

In Strike at St. Louis

St. Louis—(AP)—Milton N. Johnson, manager of the Ford Motor company's assembly plant here, claimed a "moral victory" today over striking members of the United Automobile Workers of America.

As 40 pickets milled in the bitter cold at the plant's main entrance bearing signs stating "locked out by Ford" and "we're picketing because we want our jobs back," Johnson said:

"That just proves what we have contended all along—there is no strike here."

Norman Smith, U. A. W. A. organizer, said the strike was proceeding "satisfactorily" and that picket lines would be maintained.

Until today the pickets' signs had read "Ford on strike."

The strike, because of alleged discrimination against union members at the plant, has been in progress since Nov. 24. The plant has continued to operate.

Washington—(AP)—A survey has disclosed enough votes to pass the senate crop control bill, Senator Pope (D-Iowa) said today, despite the widespread criticism of many of its provisions.

Leaders in both senate and house hope to get a vote by Wednesday, but the two measures are so different that it is a foregone conclusion a conference committee would have to find some middle ground.

Some members said that composing these differences might delay final enactment of a bill until the regular session beginning in January.

Secretary Wallace was reported dissatisfied with both senate and house bills. Wallace has called the senate bill "too restrictive" because it does not permit sufficient surplusage, in his view, to safeguard consumers against shortages and high prices and to prevent further loss of foreign markets.

He was said to believe the house bill, on the other hand, would permit excessive surpluses.

Some legislators have contended control features of the bill would drive many farmers into dairying, to the detriment of those already in this field. The house has adopted an amendment to protect dairy farmers, and Senator Copeland (D-N. Y.) is sponsoring a similar amendment in the senate.

Young Republicans Think LaFollette Can be Beaten Without Coalition Program

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer,
Waukesha, Wis.—Moderately enthusiastic members of Wisconsin Young Republican clubs, ranging in age from 18 to 65, served notice on the Wisconsin electorate here over the weekend that the G. O. P. elephant is feeling frisky enough to single-handed and accordingly organization of which is already

After eagerly taking turns dehouse after next year's elections.

Blow to Fusion

stiff blow to the fusion movement

Boy's Punctuality Saves

5 Persons From Death

Milwaukee—(AP)—A youth's punctuality in keeping a date saved the lives of five members of the Wil-

Richard Grabarczyk, 14, in ac-with Alvin Kozminski Saturday night, called for his chum Sunday morning.

He knocked twice at the door, but received no answer. After a minute, however, he heard moans.
Entering the home he saw William Kozminski, the father, stumbling from a bedroom dazed. He told the boy:

"Get help and get it quick."

Police ambulances rushed to the home and took the entire family, all overcome by coal gas which had escaped from the furnace in the bas-hospital.

MISSING SATURDAY

Phone Calls to Home of Mother Intercepted, Report

White Plains, N. Y. —(AP)—Reports that Arthur Fried, 32, member of a wealthy family, had been kidnaped and was being held for $100,000 ransom, brought federal agents to White Plains today.
Fried vanished Saturday.

The reports said that Fried's five brothers had made a contact with a gang, believed to be holding the young man, and were trying to argue them into reducing the amount of ransom.

Telephone calls to the home of Fried's mother, Mrs. Emma Fried, who lives in a palatial house in Soundview avenue, were being intercepted at the central telephone exchange and the caller's numbers relayed to police headquarters.

Fried attended a motion picture show Saturday night with his wife, a brother-in-law, and the latter's wife. On the way home they dropped him at his mother's house to get his automobile, which he had parked there. The others went on to Fried's own apartment.

Automobile Found
His relatives waited for him and when he did not return they became anxious. At 11:30 Sunday morning an alarm that he was missing was flashed over the police wires and two hours later his car was found at Rosedale Gardens, in Mamaroneck avenue, at the edge of the city.

Harold Daniels, Fried's brother-in-law and New York building financier, denied today a ransom note had been received so far as he knew, but the report was confirmed in county police headquarters.

Fried lives at Briarview Manor in Mamaroneck road with his wife and 8-year-old son, Arlen. Fried is manager of the Bronx office of the Colonial Sand and Stone company.

BOOTH TRIAL STARTS

Huntington, W. Va. —(AP)—A jury qualified to return a death penalty was assembled today to try 46-year-old Arnett A. Booth, accused of kidnaping Dr. James I. Seder, 79, retired minister and dry leader.

The capital punishment question for each and every defendant in a state's criminal code is a hanging verdict for the former convic-one of three men charged with spiriting the clergyman to a coal mine.

The other two defendants, John Travis and Orville Adkins, 24, obtained separate trials. Federal Agent R. E. Vetterli said they also have prison records and that a demand for $50,000 ransom was never met.

Dr. Seder, one-time state president of the Anti-Saloon League, was abducted from his home on Nov. 1. Federal and state officers vainly sought a "break" in the case.

Then, 10 days later, the aged churchman stumbled bleeding and suffering from the cold from woods not far from Huntington and told how he had been held captive in a damp, abandoned coal mine.

He died four days later, physicians declaring that pneumonia
"undoubtedly" was caused by confined in the mine.

Defense Counsel Frank W. Riggs
and John G. Hudson said Booth would plead insanity.

Mineral Rights in

Flooded Basin are

Valued at 3 Billion

Knoxville, Tenn.—(AP)—An attorney for Senator George L. Berry and others asserted today that their mineral rights in the basin flooded
by the Tennessee valley authority's Norris dam reservoir would be valued by witnesses at more than three billion dollars.

Leslie Morris, chief counsel for a group of 30 claimants, made the statement at the opening of a suit brought by the federal agency to condemn the holdings. A three-man commission appointed by Judge
George Taylor of the district federal court is hearing the case.

There is no other marble like it in the world," Morris declared.
"The TVA has made no offer and we have not asked a definite sum."
Morris said there was a billion cubic feet of marble alone, valued at $3 to $4.40 per cubic foot, lying under the floor of Norris lake.

The government obtained ownership of the vast acreage in upper east Tennessee through condemnation proceedings over a long period.
The claims of the land holders to the marble and mineral rights totaled approximately $3,000,000 in the suits filed in federal court.

Court Decision Is Expected Tuesday On WDA Validity

Several Important Points are Involved in Suit Against Dammann

Madison — (P) — The supreme court's decision on the validity of the Wisconsin Development Authority, a state agency empowered to engage in the public utility business along the lines of the federal administration's TVA, is due tomorrow.

A suit brought by the WDA against Secretary of State Theodore Dammann was raised to release any part of the $120,000 appropriation made to the authority by the 1937 legislature, involves several important questions.

One is whether the state government, which is forbidden by the constitution to engage in works of internal improvement, is doing so either directly or indirectly by appropriating money to the WDA, a private corporation.

Another question concerns a policy that has been following for many years—the appropriation of funds to private associations of livestock breeders, cheesemakers, dairymen and potato growers.

Technical Point
A third point the court was asked to consider is purely technical. It goes back to the day when the WDA appropriation was passed. The opposing bloc in the senate staged a walkout and the first roll call on the bill showed a quorum of less than 20 members, the number required to vote on appropriation bills. The absentees were brought in later.

State officials agreed that the fate of the Wisconsin Agricultural Authority act, passed at the recent special session, is bound up with that of the development authority. Both are built on the same legal framework. The agricultural authority was allotted an appropriation to improve the standards of Wisconsin farm products and to promote cooperation.

Not Yet Functioning
So far the agricultural body has made no attempt to function. The WDA started work in the field of rural electrification. It offered financial help on the organization of a county cooperative and issued some mimeograph forms of an educational nature.

When the bills for this work, amounting to a little more than $100 were presented, Secretary of State Dammann refused to approve them. He had been threatened by a Milwaukee Taxpayers' association with an injunction suit.

The WDA started a mandamus action to compel Dammann to approve its vouchers.

The supreme court heard arguments on the case two months ago. Normally its decision would have been rendered Nov. 9 but the case was passed at that time.

Industry to Outline What It Expects From Commerce Department

Madison — (P) — The views of Wisconsin industry on what the new state department of commerce should do to help business will be put up to the state administration publicity at the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' association in Milwaukee Dec. 17.

George F. Kull, secretary-manager of the association outlined plans for the convention today. Sessions will be held at the Pfister hotel.

F. H. Clausen, Horicon manufacturer, will lead a discussion on what industry has to expect from the commerce department.

The department was created by the special session of the legislature but has not started to function. Governor LaFollette has not yet appointed a director.

Kull asserted everything that has been said about the department to date has come from those on the outside of industry, looking in and that Clausen's discussion will be the first recommendation to come from those whom the department is intended to benefit.

George E. Sokolsky, prominent author and lecturer, who has been studying the economic situation in this country will be one of the principal convention speakers. Others include: De Los Walker, New York; Voyta Wabnitz, Madison, chairman of the state labor relations board; Robert W. Leach, Milwaukee, who will discuss the unemployment insurance law, and Leo L. Lunenschloss, Madison manufacturer.

The association will hear reports from its officers, elect directors and appoint its standing committees.

Commend State Cabbage Breeders For Research Work

Develop Plant to Resist Disease at Experiment Station

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington — Wisconsin cabbage breeders have been commended by the United States Department of Agriculture for pushing ahead in new research on that vegetable.

Declaring that cabbage breeding is one field in which scientific plantmen have attained their first objectives and are now going forward on new lines, officials said: "Cabbage yellows is a disease caused by a fusarium fungus that threatened the cabbage-growing industry, particularly in Wisconsin."

"L. R. Jones, of the state experiment station, started selecting cabbages for resistance to the disease. J. C. Walker and other United States Department of Agriculture workers cooperated and there are now satisfactorily resistant varieties of all the principal cabbage types," they added.

In the opinion of the department of agriculture, this is one of the most important single achievements of publicly supported research in plant breeding. The expense of the breeding work, they say, was only a trifle in proportion to value of results.

"At present," said Roy Magruder of the agriculture department, "major emphasis in cabbage breeding is upon development of strains that are resistant to disease other than yellows, strains that are particularly adapted to a definite locality, or strains with superior eating or storage quality."

The list of cameras now owned by members of the club includes almost every type manufactured. Each member will explain the operation of his own camera.

MURDER SUSPECT CAPTURED

Robert Shaw, 27, hunted for 22 hours for the slaying of Deputy Sheriff Harry Spice, near LaGrange, Ind., is shown in a hospital at LaGrange, after he was shot and captured as he made a break from a corn shock on a farm where he had been hiding. Physicians said his wounds were not serious. He was also sought for a Kendallville, Ind., holdup and shooting.

Boy Scouts and Their Troops

The first aid team representing Troop 26, Marion, took first place in the district first aid contest which was held at Marion recently. The winning squad competed against six other teams from three Clintonville troops. Marion's team earned a total of 382 points out of a possible 400 points. Jim Rogers, Phil Bowers, Tom Rogers, and Junior Pfeiffer were the members of the winning team. The Mohican patrol representing Troop 30, Clintonville, was close behind in second place, having scored a total of 381 points. Members of the patrol who participated were Ronald Fillnow, Orville Marquardt, Charles Mack, and Louis Beer. The Beaver patrol, also of Troop 30, attained sixth place ranking in the contest. Members of this patrol were Art Drumm, Reinhold Keil, Lester Drumm, and Roy Fillnow. Third place honors went to one of the teams from Troop 23, Clintonville, with a score of 377. Troop 22 was also represented in the contest by two other teams. One of these teams was fourth, while the other was fifth. Seventh place in the contest went to Troop 21. The chairman who presided over the contest was George L. Hofman. Other members of the committee in charge were Lee Forrest and Emory Rogers. Other officials were: Mike Foley, floor manager; E. E. Thomas, chief recorder; Quintus Hofman, chief timer; and George L. Hofman, chief registrar.

The last meeting of Troop 30, Clintonville, was devoted almost entirely to the discussion of the first aid contest. The scouts of Troop 30 can justly be proud of the record they are maintaining at Clintonville High school. The football team, the band, and the glee club each have a number of scouts from Troop 30.

Troop 26 of Marion is planning to undertake a civic project which will be of great benefit to the entire village. The scouts are in the midst of making preparations for a skating rink. The boys have secured the permission of the village board and the fire department, and the work of flooding the rink will be started as soon as the weather permits. The scouts have undertaken the project and promised that they will maintain its upkeep. The citizens of Marion have received the plan with enthusiasm since they realize that the former hazards of ice-skating will virtually be eliminated as a result.

Edgar Arps, assistant scoutmaster of Troop 20, Kaukauna, recently supervised a hike to Wrightstown. The trek provided an opportunity for the scouts who wanted to pass the 14-mile hike test. Scouts who participated in the trip were John Velte, Bill Mitchell, Junior Nagel, Jim Nagel, Eugene Lang, Paul Kersten, Ralph Mooney, and Edgar Arps. The hike was especially enjoyable since it was marked by the first snowfall of the year. During the last meeting of the troop, Robert Dougherty and Norman Ashe passed Eugene Lang and Tom Velte in their first aid tests. Meanwhile the remainder of the scouts were instructed in the art of Indian sign language by Wallace Mooney, scoutmaster.

At a recent meeting of Troop 31, Kaukauna, plans for a hike to be held soon were discussed by the scouts. The regular meeting ended with a stunt performed by the Pioneer patrol. A gathering of the various patrol leaders of the troop followed the regular scout meeting.

the Young Republicans accomplished these things:

1. Rejection of old officers, through the device of refusing to recognize nominations from the floor. The officers are Edward Goode, Minocqua, president; R. F. McMillen, Fond du Lac, vice president; Mrs. Vera Evans, vice chairman; Mrs. George Greeley, Oshkosh, secretary; and John K. Lankton, Menomonie, treasurer.
2. Voted another state meeting for May.
3. Succeeded partly in rewriting the principles of the Wisconsin Republican party in terms of what they called the changing social needs of today.
4. Adopted a set of resolutions blasting the LaFollette administration and its majority in the legislature for their throttling of democratic ideals during the two legislative sessions this year, resolutions drawn and presented by Assemblyman Catlin who spoke heatedly and at length of the experiences of himself and his minority colleagues in the legislative chambers this year.

Show Strong Feeling
Although outwardly the convention proceeded with its business with decorous precision, there was a strong feeling between factions headed by Goode and Catlin, both of them ambitious to hold the presidency of the organization, Goode furiously raging against a coalition with Democrats, Catlin holding out determinedly for such a move.

Catlin dropped in late in the morning, with the announced purpose of making things uncomfortable for President Goode, who had been making frequent statements to the press about the party treason committed by Republicans who are organizing the fusion sentiment.

First open evidence of the breach came when the nominations committee recommended a single slate of candidates for office, those who have been holding office during the last year. A moment later Harold H. Judell, a university law student, placed Catlin's name before the convention. With a straight face, and after listening to speeches denouncing the railroad tactics of the LaFollette forces in the legislature, Charles Hays Jr., Huron, convention chairman, ruled the nomination out of order and declared the nominations closed. So with no choice, old officers were returned to their posts.

Catlin is Chairman
Catlin managed, however, to get the chairmanship of the resolutions committee, turned up a short time later with four resolutions suited to the temper of the meeting, and a fifth endorsing Republican-Democratic fusion, which once more turned the meeting into unruly debate.

The Appleton legislator is a member of the executive committee of the coalition in the Wisconsin legislature, and battling to have his resolution adopted, cried that his sole purpose was to put the organization on record instead of allowing it to ignore a vital Wisconsin political issue.

"We've been evading issues for 10 years," he said, "and we're getting ticked on it. This is one method of defeating the present administration. If you don't adopt this resolution, you'll be in the same rut you've been in for years."

After the 100 delegates had argued warmly for more than an hour on Catlin's proposal and a minority report which spurned fusion but invited Democrats to come into the Republican ranks and run on the Republican ticket, Catlin rose again and warned that "you're doing the same poor job done by the Republican party for years in avoiding the vital issues in Wisconsin."

Although he battled spiritedly, Catlin was doomed to defeat and knew it. According to Orville Hegner, a delegate from Outagamie county and Eighth district Republican chairman, 95 of the delegates present would have voted against the fusion declaration had not both alternatives finally been tabled.

Sandwiched in between the debate sessions, the corridor caucuses and the budding pooms inevitable on every convention floor, the young Republicans heard speeches by Edward J. Samp, Madison, chairman of the Republican state voluntary committee, A. J. Glover, Fort Atkinson, Whitney H. Eastman, Milwaukee industrialist, and J. O. Carson, Indianapolis labor leader.

Samp cautioned that Republicans must get busy immediately for next year's campaign. Glover, Wisconsin farm editor, assailed to "control" features of the new Roosevelt farm program. Eastman attacked government interference as a hamper to business progress while Carson worried his audience with the Communist threat "which can no longer be ignored."

In line with their announced plans for revision of Republican principles, the Young Republicans adopted a resolution which they said represented "a liberalization of the prior labor policy of the Republican party." It advocated "such legislation as necessary to keep pace with changing labor conditions," and endorsed "the principle of collective bargaining exercised through individual decision, free from coercion from any source, and representing the majority opinion of the workers."

May Appeal Court Decision on Farm Truck License Law

Secretary of State to Confer With Attorney General on Ruling

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Theodore Damman, Wisconsin secretary of state, said here that he has not yet decided what action to take on a court interpretation of the state farm truck license law which gives farmers the right to a reduced registration fee but added that he will confer with Attorney General Orland S. Loomis on the case and that "we may appeal it later."

Damman said that he will consult with the attorney general upon what course to follow as soon as the records of the court case reach him, probably in about two weeks. In an opinion handed down earlier this week Judge A. J. C. Reis of the Dane county circuit court accepted the contentions of attorneys for F. A. and M. G. Eberlein, proprietors of the Wildwood farms near Shawano that the gross weight provision of the state licensing law applies to the weight of the truck alone, and not to the truck when loaded.

In effect the decision interprets the state law to mean that owners of farm trucks are required to pay only $5 for license plates provided the weight of the truck, unloaded, does not exceed two tons. The Eberlein brothers had sought to compel the secretary of state to issue them a license for $5 on a truck with a net weight of 3,850 pounds. Damman had refused to issue the license for $5 unless the brothers promised to haul no load in excess of 150 pounds, because, he conceded, a $5 license may not be issued if the truck and contents exceed two tons in weight.

Sees Paradox
Pointing out that "gross weight" of other than farm trucks means, under the law, the weight of the truck and its maximum load but, in the case of farm trucks means "net" weight, Judge Reis said:

"This may be a paradox. Legislators have the right to be paradoxical. That idiosyncrasy does not call for court review, as long as what the legislature has said is plain, as it is here."

"We may judicially recognize," Reis' opinion goes on "that the smallest trucks range from 3,000 to 3,800 pounds. In petitioners' case, the truck weighs 3,850 pounds."

"What kind of benefit is given to the farmer by an exception that permits him to carry only 150 pounds? How many hundred-pound sacks of potatoes could he carry on that? The answer is obvious—one and one-half."

"As counsel for petitioner says, he could carry a ton of corn or wood and not get enough for it in cents to pay for the gasoline to town."

The law in question reads: "For the registration of 'farm trucks' which are defined as trucks having a gross weight of no more than two tons, or trucks which are passenger automobiles that have been converted into trucks, which are owned and operated by a farmer exclusively for farm use and not for commercial purposes, a fee of five dollars."

Damman Friday declined to estimate the amount of revenue would be lost to the state treasury if the decision is allowed to stand.

What's New at the Library

With a foresight which seems almost to have bordered on premonition, Amelia Earhart, on her flight nearly around the world sent back as she completed each stage of her journey not only her dispatches and personal letters, but her diaries, three penciled books of them, and her charts and running log she kept in the cockpit. These appear in a recently published book entitled "Last Flight" which is gay and informal in style, filled with the spirit of high adventure. She reviews her career from early beginnings down to her preparations and launching of the world flight which ended in tragedy.

Elmer Rice, author of "Street Scene," the play which won the Pulitzer prize several seasons ago, has published his first novel, "Imperial City," in which the whole city is his province. He presents a kaleidoscopic picture of the lives of men and women of all races, creeds, of both high and low social circles, whose destinies are directly or indirectly linked with each other. Law in action, night clubs, politics, labor, the theater, big business, the academic world, all appear in its pages.

A dramatic cavalcade of the early stage in America and England is "Encore" by Daniel Fiohman, "dean of the theatrical world." A book of theatrical lore and mature comment, it tells the story of Anthony Aston, first actor of the American stage, Edwin Forrest, the greatest of tragedians, of Dion Boucault, author or adaptor of more than 300 plays, Edwin Booth and the greatest tragedy of American history. In it old Broadway, Chestnut street and Drury Lane come back to life, and figures, both major and minor, appear as reviewed by a man whose name and reputation are permanent in the minds of all who are interested in the theater of two continents.

The changing era since shortly before the Civil war to the present is portrayed by Edgar A. Custer in a new book entitled "No Royal Road." The author played a real part in the development of his country's railroads. Mechanical engineer by profession, musician and artist by choice, he started writing his recollections when he retired from active business three years ago. He is now 76 years old and this is his first book.

With people of almost every profession turning author, it is not surprising that Lotte Lehmann, operatic singer, has published a novel entitled "Eternal Flight." It is her first novel and already has been published in Austria, Germany, Italy, France and the Netherlands.

The love story of Troilus and Cressida is brought to modern emotions and issues varying from 11-baldry to tragic beauty in "The Trojan Horse" by Christopher Morley. The author uses an entirely new form of narrative in his book.

"Treasure Trails in Art" by Anna Curtis Chandler, the woman who has become well known through radio talks and lectures from the stage of the Metropolitan Museum in New York tells the stories of 20 master-painters and 20 of their masterpieces that have a special appeal for the young. She tells how each came to be painted and gives the background of the man who painted it.

Lawrence Points To Dangers Found In Bureau's Order

Questions Government's Right to Probe in "Personal Affairs"

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — Another episode has developed which would seem to indicate that, in the Democratic administration, the right hand doesn't know what the left hand is doing.

For many weeks now it has been the intention of the "right hands"—the conservatives in the administration—to spread the idea that the business "recession"—not depression—is going to be cured by a helpful policy of cooperation between the government and business and that the thing which must be got rid of is basic fears about the future.

Now has come out of the Bureau of Internal Revenue a request which, on its face is unexplained, but which can be construed as expressing a fear that the government of the United States is afraid of the future and is getting ready to protect itself against a flight of capital to other countries or is getting ready to make a capital levy, which amounts to a confiscation of property.

The order issued by the Internal Revenue bureau, which requires a listing of assets and costs thereof, applies for the time being against persons with net incomes of $100,000 a year or over, but, if it is legal to issue such an order, the administration can overnight promulgate the same sort of decree against persons with net incomes of $3,000 and over per year.

Why does the Democratic administration want to get a list of the personal assets of taxpayers, together with a sworn statement of their cost and true worth? The constitution of the United States gives the federal government the power to levy taxes on income, and the word "income" is used instead of "assets." It is conceivable that congress can delegate to the treasury department the power to demand a list of assets where fraud as to reported income is suspected. But, in the absence of such a situation, the federal government would seem to have no legal right to issue a blanket request for information concerning the personal affairs of the citizens. There's a clause in the federal constitution which is supposed to protect the citizen against "unreasonable searches and seizures" and the Democratic administration has not disclosed why it considers its request necessary or reasonable.

May Disregard Order
Hence, citizens will probably consult counsel as to whether they should pay any attention to the new decree.

But what does the administration want to find out? One explanation advanced is that it will assist the Internal Revenue bureau agents in determining income as well as taxes on estates and gifts from year to year. But the treasury has power under existing law to make the taxpayer come across with any information deemed essential to the auditing of an income tax return if there is ground for suspicion that irregularity has occurred or dishonesty has been practiced.

It may be that the administration is getting ready to submit to congress further details of taxpayers' income tax returns in plain violation of the spirit of the relationship that should exist between the taxpayer and his government. The social security board is an example of an agency which has refused all sorts of requests for information about the cards or identity of individuals, even though the information is sought to aid criminal prosecutions. The Social Security board insists the information was given confidentially by the citizen and should be so treated.

TO 'REMEMBER THE ALAMO'

They won't forget the Alamo in Texas and to serve as a constant reminder of that heroic stand, this statue of Captain Ben Milam, hero of the siege, has been purchased by the Lone Star state to be placed in Milam Square, San Antonio. Here is Sculptress Bonnie MacLeary beside the figure in her New York studio.

But the Internal Revenue bureau has no such feeling about income tax returns and has apparently made no public protest against the misuse made of taxpayers' returns last spring, when data and names were submitted to a congressional committee in connection with the so-called inquiry into tax avoidance.

It will be recalled that Morrison Shafroth, of Denver, Col., resigned as general counsel of the Internal Revenue bureau rather than acquiesce in the high-handed procedure of the administration in revealing the names of taxpayers who had complied with the law but whose tax returns were made on the basis of political charges concerning alleged avoidance.

Potential Mischief
Under the existing interpretation of the law, the Internal Revenue bureau could transmit to congress a list of personal assets of individuals with incomes of $100,000 or over and could open to inspection the costs of all such assets. If the details of the assets of persons with incomes of $100,000 can be made public, so also can at any time the details of costs of assets of individuals of $3,000 be revealed. If you bought your house for $10,000 and want to sell it at a profit, it would be possible for a member of congress to get the information as to what you paid for it and publish it. While this may be an extreme illustration, it shows the potential mischief of prying into private affairs which now is considered by the administration to be proper.

The present law reads that "all returns made under this act shall constitute public records and shall be authorized in rules and regulations promulgated by the president."

It was the president himself who ordered the Internal Revenue bureau to turn over the names of persons who were taking advantage of loopholes on the credit laws, and there is no assurance that, if the lists of assets are sent to the treasury, they too will not some day be spread upon the public records.

As for the purposes of the decree ordering taxpayers to file the information, the only official word is that the data are wanted for "statistical purposes." In Europe, especially in the Fascist countries, decrees are issued to get at the assets of citizens in order to keep track of possible flight of capital to other countries. Is the administration afraid that wealthy people in the United States will seek to transfer their investments to other countries? Is there to be a levy on capital? Either possibility is suggested by the mere request for information and, in the absence of a convincing explanation of what the data are wanted for, the world of capital will begin to suspect that the government's fiscal situation which may develop in 1938 or 1939 is being foreseen here with somewhat the same realism that prevailed in foreign countries where policies of inflation from time to time caused a flight of funds.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Scapegoats and Reforms in the Stock Market

Ever since the market broke in the middle of August, the Stock Exchange in New York and the Securities Commission in Washington have been behaving for all the world like two unfriendly governments engaged in a diplomatic bout. They have issued declarations and counter-declarations, rebuttals and sur-rebuttals at one another, and each has displayed toward the other that icy politeness which is so effectively unpleasant.

A row was, of course, inevitable. For when so many persons have lost so much money so quickly, their easiest consolation is to find a scapegoat. Some one had to be blamed for the bear market and the two most obvious candidates for scapegoats were the Exchange itself and the Commission. Yet this particular row seems to have taken its special form as a result of a mere coincidence. On August 18, Mr. Gay, the president of the Exchange, published his annual report in which he noted with much concern that "the quality of the market has been seriously affected" by acts of the government. From approximately that very day until late in November the market went through one of the most violent shakeouts in its whole history.

Yet Mr. Gay must have written his report many weeks earlier, and he could hardly have foreseen how dramatically he was going to become a major prophet. That could only have been a happy accident, of course, for the Administration it was very bad luck. The accidental timing of Mr. Gay's report caused thousands of unhappy investors to lay the blame for this crash on Washington rather than on Wall Street. Since then, the retiring chairman of the commission, Mr. Landis, and the present chairman, Mr. Douglas, have made mighty efforts to put the blame back on Wall Street.

Both Sides Undoubtedly Are Playing Politics

This may sound like a rather disrespectful account of the efforts of the gentlemen concerned, but I think that any one who will study their correspondence as a whole must see both sides are undoubtedly playing politics. When I say that they are playing politics I mean precisely this: that neither Mr. Gay nor Mr. Douglas is being completely candid in that each is conveniently forgetting to mention those elements of the problem which it is inexpedient for him to mention.

This can be demonstrated rather easily. Mr. Gay's thesis is that the market has been made "narrow and illiquid" by excessive and unwise regulation, by government tax and credit laws. Now there is no doubt that the recent market was the narrowest and most illiquid in twenty years; perhaps never before have prices fallen so violently on such a small volume of sales.

But what Mr. Gay neglected to mention was that the deterioration of the market began at least twenty years ago. The official bulletin of the New York Stock Exchange for November has some charts which prove, it seems to me conclusively, that the market has been becoming narrower and more illiquid, not since 1934 alone, but since 1917. Thus in the bear market of 1916-1917 the ratio of price changes to volume of sales was 1.95. In the bear market of 1919 it was 1.99. In 1923 it was 2.32. In 1929 it was 4.36. In 1934 it was 6.92. Last spring it was 8.73. And this autumn it was 12.54.

Therefore, however much the New Deal policies may have accentuated the bad tendency, it was well under way long before the New Deal. So I say that Mr. Gay's discussion of the problem is that of an advocate of a cause rather than of an objective student of a problem.

Attempt To Pin The Blame On Wall Street
Mr. Douglas, and Mr. Landis as well, are no less obviously advocates. For in their discussion of the problem they never permit themselves to think of any cause which is not centered in Wall Street. They talk only about the rules and practices of the Stock Exchange, leaving the impression that these alone, and nothing that happens in Washington, have any bearing on the violence of the crash.

This is not very grown up. And it is not going to do Mr. Gay or Mr. Douglas any good to play poker with a serious matter of this sort.

New York Market Shows Wider Changes

However, they are at least agreed on the fundamental fact that something is wrong with the New York stock market. I have figures compiled in Europe which compare the movement of prices on the six leading stock exchanges of the world in the years from 1923 to 1933. The ups and downs in New York are very much more violent than on any of the others. And, worst of all, they have been getting more and more violent in New York ever since 1917, and cumulatively in the past few years. London, which is the most obvious competitor, is an ever so much steadier market. In no year, for example, since 1920 have the highs and lows of the principal share been anything like so far apart as in New York.

Instead of issuing pronouncements at one another, Mr. Gay and Mr. Douglas ought to be sponsoring a searching inquiry to find out why New York is such a very much poorer stock market than London. For, of course, they both know that a poor stock market means not only that a lot of people lose their money very easily, but that the machinery for financing industrial development is seriously defective.

Bir Informed Investor Pushed Out of Picture

Though it is rash, perhaps impetuous, for a mere layman to suggest an hypothesis for such an inquiry, I venture to suggest one. I suggest that they study the fact that the number of issues in New York has increased more rapidly than the number of persons interested in the stock market, that there are now so many stocks to be traded in that there are not enough traders to make a close market in many of them.

And then I suggest that they ask themselves whether this basic weakness of the market is not greatly accentuated in New York by two developments: first, that it has been made so easy and so convenient for little investors and little speculators to play the market, and, second, that it has been made so difficult and so unprofitable for the larger investors and speculators.

The little investors and speculators, by and large, are both weak and ignorant. Almost invariably they buy at the top and sell at the bottom, and in the end most of them lose what they started with. They make a bad market. Yet they are in the market in great numbers, because the United States, unlike any other country, has board rooms and tickers all over the place, and anybody with half a shoe string can borrow the other half.

The big informed investors and speculators, on the other hand, have been pushed out of the market. What with the capital gains tax, which means that they cannot afford to take profits when they have them; what with the rule forbidding officers to trade in their own securities; what with the tax exemptions as a refuge from the high surtaxes, the very men who could trade shrewdly and powerfully are kept more or less on the side lines.

No Painless Remedy Will Be Discovered

If this is correct—if the volatility of the New York market is due to the fact that too many small and too few large traders are in a market that has too many stocks—then reform is needed, both in the Exchange and in government policy. They will be difficult reforms. For the Exchange to make stock trading less like playing the slot machines and more, as it is in London, like the buying and sell of property, would be a painful reform. It is a question whether the Exchange could initiate so drastic a reform. For the government to revise the tax laws and the regulations which exclude the big fellows is also a difficult reform, involving among other things the painful admission of error.

But of one thing we may be certain. It is that to cure the evil, which both Mr. Gay and Mr. Douglas recognize, no painless and cheap remedy will be found. Those who come offering easy remedies, particularly remedies which make the other fellow the scapegoat, are almost surely trifling with the problem.

Farm Youth Can Obtain Education on a Shoestring Through U. W. Short Course

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — An adult education program begun experimentally five years ago to train farm leaders in the ranks of those to whom the nation must look for those leaders in the future—the young men who will operate the farms of tomorrow—is again in operation on the campus of the University of Wisconsin and seems to have established itself as a permanent part of Wisconsin's educational system.

It is the Wisconsin Farm Folk school, better known as the "agriculture short course," which is known throughout the country as the first, and still the foremost, school of its kind in America, patterned after the Danish folk schools in Europe and dedicated to the proposition that the young farmers of today need, and want, training in how to live in addition to how to make a living.

"Education on Shoestring"
This institution, which already has caught the attention of the leading educational authorities in many ways, first, it illustrates the possibility for an ambitious farm boy to "get an education on a shoestring," for the 300 odd students enrolled study and work at the school for 15 weeks, from the middle of November to the middle of March, at a total cost of $97.50.

Second, the students do not work for credits, nor is there any educational prerequisite for admission. Some of the boys have completed only grade school, many have high school diplomas, several have college degrees, while one young farmer enrolls in this fall with the distinction of having studied at one of the proudest universities in the East, Harvard.

Self-maintaining
Third, and this will seem truly remarkable to many Wisconsin citizens, the school doesn't cost the taxpayer a cent. The entire cost of the institution is borne by the $97.50 fee collected from each student. Meals are prepared at an average cost of 20 cents each, or $4 a week, in a community refectory, while one dollar a week is charged for room.

In 1931 the historic Wisconsin short course in the College of Agriculture, founded in 1885, was reorganized. No longer was the institution to be a trade school only. It became an adult education project, designed to train young farmers to become better farmers, but also better, and intelligent, progressive citizens who would become leaders in their localities, leaders in social, political and economic life.

Cultural Subjects
Teachers, scientists, county agents, and other agricultural specialists would be trained in the four year courses in the college of agriculture. The short course would tell the boys about cattle, hogs, soils and plant life, but also would open up to them the world of literature, arts, the social sciences, in short, the cultural subjects which are otherwise too often denied them.

And so it has, for five years. Today the school's sixth term has just opened. More than 300 eager young men, ranging from 16 to 34 years of age, are enrolled on farms covering 1,500 acres to more than 100,000 acres. They are on the little plots of 60 or 80 acres, are mixing the practical side of the farmer's livelihood with the job of learning how to improve this business of living.

Return to Farm
Head of this decidedly unconventional school is a white-haired, middle-aged, friendly professor, V. E. Kivlin, to whom the school is a pet, an idea achieved. For it was Dr. Kivlin who first talked over the project with Glenn Frank, then the state university's president, almost ten years ago.

Kivlin is proud of the school, takes pride in its students and its graduates who are now spread all over the state. For he explained, the graduates of the school invariably return to the farm. They know what they come for, they get it, and go back home and become better farmers.

Community Life
A large part of the boys' training in citizenship, Kivlin feels, is derived from their community life. They eat together in a community mess hall. They sleep together in crude, but comfortable bunks in renovated sheep barns. They study together, attend forums and classes together. Their social outlets are the religious groups in the city churches.

"We teach them farming," observes Dr. Kivlin, "but these young men are not going to be farming all the time. They are going to be citizens, and neighbors. These young men want to learn how to live too."

To learn about the world around them, and its problems, the university provides some of its ablest professional teachers. In addition, state and national leaders in every branch of life, business, politics, agriculture, art, lecture and cheerfully answer the questions fired at them at the forums which are held three or four times weekly during the course.

Varied Discussions
Just now, for instance, they are hearing discussions, and asking questions about international relations, the negro question, New

Hollywood News And Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—New peril for film troupes in African jungles is reported by Otto Brower, director of an expedition into the Tanganyika country for the film "Stanley and Livingstone."

"The native men buy and sell wives at a standard price of 90 goats or 10 cows for each woman," Brower related on his return. "Each man saves up his cows and goats until he gets enough to buy another wife."

So when the movie people, far from civilization, wanted to buy meat—for their own needs and to pay 2,500 natives who demanded food rather than money for "extra" work—they couldn't get it. Brower finally sent native runners with an appeal to the nearest British government outpost, got cattle commandeered, and had the wife-hoarding reimbursed with cash and the promise to redeem the money in cattle later.

Cesar Romero tells it on himself: After a recent preview he was surrounded by autograph hunters. He had one girl's book and pencil in hand, poised to sign his name, when the cry went up, "There's Clark Gable!" Suddenly Romero was standing alone, the book and pencil snatched from his hand, which was still poised as though to sign his name.

Fritz Feld, the character actor "I Met Him in Paris," "True Confession," "The Yellow Nightingale," has been trying to become a director for 20 years. Once Lubitsch, when managing director of production at Paramount, made Feld his editorial assistant. Feld took the job on condition he would be allowed to direct at the first opportunity. Lubitsch, agreeing, if Feld would stop acting long enough to be considered a directing possibility. But Lubitsch married, honeymooned in Europe, and during his absence Feld was prevailed upon by Wesley Ruggles to take the Colbert film role.

Close-Growing Crop Helps Keep Top Soil From Washing Away

Muddy water is a danger signal, a warning that topsoil is being washed off fields. Strip cropping, with alternating clean-cultivated and close-growing crops, is one of the best ways to reduce this loss, according to the United States Department of Agriculture in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agent.

During, or right after a hard rain, water is muddy as it enters the upper side of close-growing strips from the clean-cultivated areas. On the lower side of the close-growing strips, run-off water has decreased in volume and is much clearer. The change is caused by the dense vegetation which filters out soil particles and impedes water flow, allowing more moisture to penetrate the soil.

On steep slopes a larger number of comparatively narrow strips check soil losses more successfully than a few wide strips, the soil specialists say. A visit to the nearest soil conservation service demonstration area, where strip cropping has been planned carefully and put into practice on a number of farms, will help the farmer in laying plans for his own farm.

TRUCK IS LOCOMOTIVE
Aberdeen, S. D. — A unique carrier contraption and a standard highway truck are the locomotive power for a railroad line which operates on 18 miles of track between Leola and Mound City, S. D., near here.

Farmers and business men revived the defunct Mound City and Eastern railroad to fulfill their own transportation needs. They cut operating expenses 40 per cent by using a simple pilot car conceived by W. W. Rabey, manager of the line.

The pilot car was constructed by dismembering an old flatcar. It is composed of two units which are joined by hooks in the center after a motor truck is backed into shafts similar to those of the outmoded buggy.

The front wheels of the motor vehicle are carried in a cradle six inches above the rails by the front section. The rear wheels rest on the rails and are held in position, without the use of flanges, by the rear section of the pilot car.

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSION

Kimberly-Clark Industrial Relations Talk No. 5

A LIFE long interest in community affairs has convinced me that there should be more direct contacts and acquaintance between an industry and its community. The vast majority of the people of any city have never been inside the walls of their factories and mills. How then can they know the facts of employee-management relations in those mills? These talks, therefore, have endeavored to make clear to the public what the facts are in Kimberly-Clark mills as well as that the matter of organization is solely one for the employees themselves.

Since these talks were started some people have asked "What is it all about?" "What are they driving at?" "What are they trying to explain?" Such questions are only natural. They reveal the lack of contact that exists between the average American community and its industries. Such questions say more plainly than anything else could that we are on the right track when we set out to close that gap. Industry must make the first move and we are making it.

Now for a brief review of the points discussed in the four preceding talks:

I have tried to make clear the difference between industrial relations by law and industrial relations that have been worked out over the years through friendly dealing between employees and management. The one presses from the outside in. The other grows from the inside out. Sound mutual relations can, we believe, be achieved through any organization, or no organization at all, provided employees and management will confer often enough, long enough, and open mindedly enough. In our talk of November 8, I spoke for our official family when I stated that members of our management had long ago come to the conclusion that the way to conduct industrial enterprises is through the 4 C's — Contact, Consultation, Confidence, and Cooperation. You can't get good employer-employee relations by passing a law any more than you can legislate good domestic relations.

On November 15, we referred to the ban of silence as to employee organization placed on all representatives of our management due to the restrictions of the Wagner Labor Relations Act. Some readers have criticized our action as being queer and unnatural. Nevertheless experience under the law has taught us that only by silence on this question of organization can the management be safeguarded from misunderstanding. This is of most vital importance in order that Kimberly-Clark employees be protected in their freedom of choice in the matter of organization. We are satisfied that, with our past experience, sound relations in Kimberly-Clark can be continued through intelligent supervision whether or not there is any employee organization.

Again, on November 22, I pointed out the three pathways to industrial understanding: One, that the management must recognize human relations in industry to be a major interest and not a sideline; Two, that good industrial relations demand much more than good wages and hours, that employees must be recognized as human beings, with respect for their personalities and human dignity; and Three, that enduring human relations call for plenty of open-minded, fearless, but friendly talk between employees and management. I pointed out that these pathways have been and are being explored in Kimberly-Clark, — how well and how satisfactorily we must leave to employees to say.

ON November 29, I stated that almost 1,500 people have been added to Kimberly-Clark pay rolls since the beginning of 1933 through the adoption of the basic six-hour day and the normal growth of the business. That is an increase of 50% in less than five years. Through Kimberly-Clark pay rolls, almost $150,000 per week flows into the channels of trade in the localities where our mills and offices are located. This is a substantial increase over similar payments in 1929. Facts like these should be in the minds of citizens as they form their opinions concerning industries in their midst. Facts like these emphasize the social responsibilities of industrial management. Such facts also suggest that well conducted industrial organizations deserve to rate as social institutions in the community where they are located.

In conclusion I would add one further thought which we feel the citizens of these communities should consider in forming their judgments of industrial management. Good employer-employee relations are more dependent than the average citizen might think on efficient operation, production, and sales. Unless the business progresses and prospers, everything else fails. Efficient conduct of the business is never possible in the face of industrial strife. No management can maintain satisfactory employee relationships without efficiency both on the part of employees and management.

When this series of talks began on November 8, I invited readers to check my statements concerning Kimberly-Clark relationships with their friends in the mills and offices of this organization. I repeat that invitation. The public opinion of a city toward its industries can be as good as, but no better than the relations between employees and management under those factory roofs. Therefore, I rest what I have said in these five talks with the real jury in the case — namely, the men and women who know Kimberly-Clark from the inside.

NAPOLEON COMES TO LIFE

Inmates of our asylums for mental cases often imagine themselves as Napoleon. It is common practice to see a man in such an institution stomp heavily up and down a room, issue orders in short, crisp words, stare haughtily at anyone who may be about or at the blank walls, and otherwise conduct himself as that "personification of force and murder" acted through the pages of history.

What connection is there between the lunatic imagining himself Napoleon and the real Napoleon? The gap between them may be much narrower than appears on the surface.

Napoleon has been dead some 115 years. The fields he laid waste have been replenished. The dead bodies that littered his march are now one with the soil. But his spirit lives on.

It is the spirit of One Man Government and the ruling spirit of nearly all One Man Government can never be said to be sincerity nor straightforwardness.

In Conquest, an adaptation of Napoleon's affair with a Polish countess, presented on the screen by Boyer and Garbo, is the opportunity to visualize more clearly the erratic conduct and consequences of all One Man Government, however resplendent the uniforms, thrilling the music, or vibrant the glories.

In respect to policies and politics the picture is a faithful representation of Napoleon's moods and emotions, now enamored of the people and bound to support democracy forever, the next day angered at the people and determined to set up a ruthless dynasty.

It may be difficult for our people at this distance from the Little Corporal's tremendous adventures to realize that he was the self-appointed champion of the poor, the humble, the worker, the peasant, and that he was enabled to maintain himself in power, strip the people of all rights, shoot dissenters, and still keep the applause rolling in because he was an excellent master of mischievous misstatement.

Even were you to separate Napoleon from the wars with which he diverted public opinion he cannot be parted from the mastery of achievement of so deluding the people that they besought him to accept their lives and shape their destinies.

But a picture like "Conquest," admirably and capably presented, will leave the beholder with the same sort of opinion concerning One Man Government that he holds of America's efforts in the last war to preserve democracy for the world, which is a feeling of utter futility.

JAPAN WILL TAKE HOW MUCH?

Japan's recent declaration of love for China is probably as great a masterpiece as may be found in Romeo and Juliet.

Japan is not out for conquest. She merely wants to be China's friend. She begs for China's trust and affection. She hopes, she nearly implores, that China will discuss with her terms to end "this unfortunate incident," for it is best to remember that no war is taking place in China, not by a long shot.

Now, it would be a mistake to miss the fact that Japan's statement carries some truth. She does want peace, on her own terms. She craves Chinese friendship—which will bring business. She does not want conquest beyond certain territories which the figures she can effectively and efficiently dominate. Japan is no fool. She doesn't want to fill herself with food she is unable to digest.

It is well to observe how patiently and methodically she has proceeded about this entire business which is now 7 years of age. She swallowed Manchuria, as big as our central western states. Then, after the lapse of years, she was ready for Jehol and North China. But suddenly she has the opportunity of taking all, for Chinese resistance has weakened in a surprising manner.

Perhaps the Chinese were fatuous. No doubt they fed their hopes and courage upon intervention by Britain and America. No doubt they expected assistance from Russia. And it is certain that they underestimated Japanese strength and iron determination.

In this respect they are something like the American confederacy which deluded itself that England, in need for cotton, would never let the south be closed off from the sea. And the copperheads in the north who kept bewailing the bloodshed gave the south constant but mistaken hope when its resources were really at the lowest.

But what will Japan do with China now that she is prostrate? Shall she take everything? Or shall she be modest? Her opportunity appears something like that of Lord Clive, who pioneered for England in India, and upon whose trial before a court of impeachment charged with profiting there was delivered by the accused this unusual statement, "My lords, I stand absolutely astonished at my own moderation."

THE ONE ALREADY UNCOVERED

One would have second sight, the power of prescience, if he could foresee all the results likely to follow upon a major or radical change in the conduct of business affairs or the habits and usages of industrial concerns as forced by law.

Yet when this Job Destruction Tax was before congress the Administration was warned that it was a dangerous thing to the stability of the country to force corporations under penalty to pay out all their profits in a given year. The attention of Washington was directed to the fact that many of our great concerns continued to employ thousands of men long after they had ceased operating profitably and when, if they consulted their own selfish purposes alone, they would have closed down.

Blandly the New Dealers let drip from their lips pearls of wisdom although men like Mr. Lewis might call it drool. There wasn't going to be any more business recession under the rulership of those of the bulging foreheads. They were going to drag this country out of the consarn horse and buggy days and get us up on the eternal fields of milk and honey.

It was hardly anticipated that a defunct and reckless policy could be exposed in so short a time. So often is it true that politicians impress their fleecy and fleeting views upon the law and pass to the Great Beyond before it becomes incumbent upon their successors to straighten out the kinks they created while the following generation pays for their folly.

But the Job Destruction Bill is the pudding we have for the winter and the virtues of one-man government are manifest in it.

Tens of thousands are being let out from great industries that never would think of letting these men out had they not been forced under penalty by the federal government to empty their treasury of their 1937 profits before January 1 came in view.

The Great Spendthrift had to have money. He did not wish to sacrifice the workers, of course. But he shut his eyes to the fact that their jobs were jeopardized as soon as he substituted his financial ideas in industry for the financial convictions of that industry's manager concerning its money necessities and gained from close contact with it for decades.

Thus the boom of 1936, famous as an election year, is built upon the sweating backs of those who will not sweat this winter because they haven't any work.

This now thoroughly discredited idea—a man could call it hated at Washington by the very men who voted for it—is still no more awkward or inept than many another Roosevelt financial scheme.

It is only different in that it has already been exposed.

PROBLEM

The king salmon is a peculiar individual. When he has lived out his life cycle and is tired of traipsing around the Pacific he decides he will go home. He knows where that home is and he does not like interference in the order of his going.

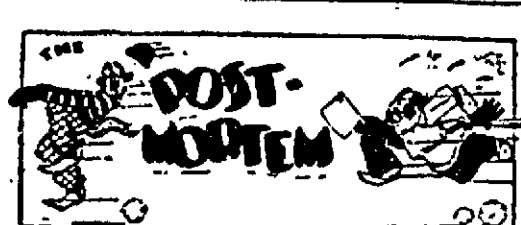

This peculiarity of the salmon causes trouble. It is costing taxpayers a good many dollars for the construction of fish "ladders" around dams that are being constructed in west coast streams that were the birthplace of millions of his companions.

Lately the salmon has been cheated in his compelling urge to return to remembered scenes. He has driven his body into the gill nets that have been placed by yellow-skinned fishers who have no sympathy for the life urge that impels him. He winds up in the cooking vats and the tin cans aboard the big fishing boats that put out from Japanese ports to steam lazily just outside Alaskan territorial waters.

The salmon that are taken by the Japanese are replaceable. That is, they would be if they were given a chance to replace themselves but the Japanese when they take one salmon on its way to its spawning bed take, in effect, thousands of salmon.

The State Department protests. Perhaps there is nothing more that can be done than to register protest. The oceans belong to those who have the strength to master them. If the Japanese have that strength they may, of course, do as they please. However, in so doing, they are ruining a major domestic industry, one that belongs to the people of the United States and one that, in recent years, has been fostered.

It is the State Department's problem and on the solution arrived at hinges the question whether salmon will continue to be an inexpensive food staple for America's millions or whether, in future, it will be placed on the top shelf with the Russian caviar and the other luxury items.

IN THE GAY NIGHTIES

Some of us, of "ancient vintage," can well remember the days when "steam-heated apartments" was just an unfamiliar phrase. We huddled around the coal-stove, while the wintry winds did blow. A peek at the thermometer — "It's twenty-eight below!"

The while our faces were burning, chills ran up and down our spines. So we'd turn around to warm our backs; soon Mother's "sawing signs" informed us it was our bedtime, and she'd like to get some sleep.

One look through frosted windows to watch the snow piling deep— Then into our long flannel nighties, and we'd scamper up the stairs. And diving under blankets, in bed we'd say our prayers.

We couldn't kneel to say them, the floors were icy-cold. No Persian rugs to cover them, so we knew the Lord wouldn't scold. For He was born in a manger, and knew what it was like to be cold.

Feet wrapped up in our nighties, covered up over our heads. The warmth of our tender young bodies soon took the chill from our beds. At least, from the small space we covered — the rest was a frigid zone.

When our little pink toes went exploring, back they came. With a shiver and groan. We tucked them once more in our nighties, then we settled ourselves to sleep. Never to wake until morning when the sun's early rays would creep. Stealthily in at our windows, and we'd wait for the breakfast call.

Ho! we hated to get up those cold mornings, and while dressing how we would stall! But the breakfast pancakes and sausages, soon made everything look right.

And gazing upon a snow-covered world which, though cold, looked cheerful and bright. We were thankful for all our blessing; to the chill blasts defiance we hurled. As trudging on to the village school, while the drifting snow eddied and whirled. Our hearts sang "God's in His Heaven, and all is well with the world."

A Verse for Today

DREAM SHIP

I would not recognize the ship That sailed away when I was young. I watched it go, with eager lip, A thousand wishes on my tongue.

But I was far too ignorant Of what the coming years might hold! Does a child know what he may want When years go by, and he is old?

So if my ship should reach at last The harbor of imaginings, My wishes of the happy past Would weigh it down with foolish things!

God's wisdom shaped a better hull. He gave my dream a new design. His choice of something beautiful Was more significant than mine. (Copyright, 1937)

SKIN OF NEW-BORN BABE
Over a period of six years Dr. H. N. Sanford, Chicago, studied the skin condition in 3,500 newborn babies.

He concluded that improperly laundered linen is the commonest cause of skin eruptions or irritation in the first few days. After the first week, circumcision was a common cause of skin irritations. The skin of newborn babies is sensitive to the antiseptic used to prepare the field for circumcision. The skin of some infants is sensitive to the petrolatum used in the dressings.

Intertrigo, that is irritation or inflammation occurring between two folds of skin or where opposing skin surfaces are in contact, causes little trouble. Buttocks reddened or irritated by loose stools heal promptly if exposed to the air and the heat from an ordinary incandescent bulb at a distance of 20 inches.

Some babies cause considerable irritation of the skin by rubbing the face with the hands. This will quickly clear up if the baby's hands are kept encased in mittens. In 1935 Dr. Sanford decided with some hesitation to leave the skin of the newborn baby entirely untreated. The skin is merely wiped off after the baby is born, and nothing further is done to it until the baby is ten days old when it may be cleansed with olive oil or with liquid petrolatum. No water or soap and water bathing in the first nine days.

The skin of the babe so neglected is much more pink and healthy looking than is the newborn baby's skin washed with soap and water or with olive oil.

Not that I am constitutionally opposed to all bathing, but, after all, man is the only mammal that bathes its young in the first few days of life, and as this extensive study of Dr. Sanford's shows, the natural protective covering of the skin is better than any substitute we can apply.

The less soap used for the bath at any time, for infant or adult, the better. Whenever a mere mopping of the skin with a little fresh olive oil or better fresh sesame oil if it is available will cleanse it, that is enough and no soap or water need be used. So far as the complexion and the hygiene or health of the skin are concerned, the use of any soap at all should be regarded only as an evil made necessary by the filth or grime of civilization.

The application of oil before the soap and water bath is as great a protection for the newborn babe's skin as the application of oil after the bath is for the mature adult's skin.

The skin of the healthy youth can stand a vigorous soap and water scrubbing every day, perhaps be improved by such treatment. Older folk should keep some suitable oil on hand and use it daily on the skin, especially when the skin is irritable.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dwindle Time

This is the best time of year to follow a reduction regimen, don't you think? Anyway, it is high time for me to get rid of about fifteen or twenty pounds I have taken on in the past year or so. I am 42 and weigh 151 pounds. According to the table I should weigh 134. (Mrs. L. F.)

Answer—The ideal reduction regimen will take nearly if not quite as long to reduce you as you took to accumulate the excess. If you mean to attempt any fast reduction, I advise you to stay as you are.

Your Birthday

"SAGGITTARIUS"
If December 7 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m., from 9:45 to 1:45 p. m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

Motive power will be the influencing factor in many lives this day. Transportation troubles due largely to carelessness, may bring trouble to many people, so if you are driving any kind of a vehicle you should exercise unusual caution. Speedy movements, or trying to do things in double-quick time, are likely to be the underlying cause of many of the day's accidents. Whatever you have to say, in any matter involving sentiment, let it be sincere. Straightforwardness will be the only method that can be practiced successfully this day, in social or business circles if you are depending on words to put anything over. Want of symmetry in things of an artistic nature must be guarded against, for distortions, due to poor vision or faulty lighting, are apt to prove offensive to discriminating eyes. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are under the magic spell of love, will find it well worthwhile to be demonstrative in their affection, today.

If a woman and December 7 is your birthday, in any partnership, with probably the exception of matrimony, your desire to dominate and regulate may make you experience a sense of dissatisfaction; so perhaps you should try to work alone. You must not get into the habit of looking on the gloomy side of things. A sufficient amount of faith and hope, on your part, might enable you to accomplish wonders. As a lecturer, interior decorator, tea room, or gift shop manager, author, actress or broker, your work, in all likelihood, will win substantial monetary recognition. There is no reason why your judgment in the selection of a husband should not be excellent.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER
Washington Anyone who can tell just how popular President Roosevelt will be next year will confer a boon on members of congress by letting them know.

Many are coming up next year for re-election—all the house and a third of the senate. If the President is slipping in popularity they can be independent as all get-out, and it will be good politics. But if the President in 1938 still cuts his old time wide swath with the voters, it won't do a congressman any good to be "against" Roosevelt.

Situation In Florida

Take Florida as a sample: Senator Pepper is finishing a two-year short term and will be up to succeed himself. Opposing him for the seat will be Representative Wilcox. Already they are sparring for position. Pepper evidently would like the Florida electorate to believe that Wilcox is anti-Roosevelt. Wilcox, it seems, would like Florida to believe that Pepper is subservient to Roosevelt while he, Wilcox, is independent, but not too independent.

It gives you an idea of how important Mr. Roosevelt's popularity trend is to his fellow politicians.

Miscellaneous Notes

DIARY:

Economy note: Representative Phil Ferguson of Woodward, Okla., a member of the house rivers and harbors committee, says he is out to get all funds possible for flood control and reservoir projects.

Metaphorical note: Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma says: "Today Europe is a powder keg and Asia is a volcano. The very earth of the eastern hemisphere is trembling under the tread of marching feet."

Secrecy note: Secretary Hull addressed 240 congressmen on the nine-power pact, neutrality and other international questions. No reporters were admitted.

Historical note: Senator Copeland of New York wants $50,000 from congress to build a memorial to Frances Joseph Paul, marquis de Grasse-Tilly, French admiral, whose ships bottled up the British fleet during the siege of Yorktown. The British later captured him and his fleet, and as a result the French almost disowned him; but Copeland believes he earned a monument. Lafayette has a whole square right across from the White House named after him.

Fence-mending note: Representative Harry R. Sheppard of California, in the 54 days between sessions, visited every community in his district, spoke 105 times to 31,000 persons and conferred with "literally hundreds" of job seekers and others.

Racing note: Representative A. J. Elliott of California drives his own trotting horse in the California county fair circuit.

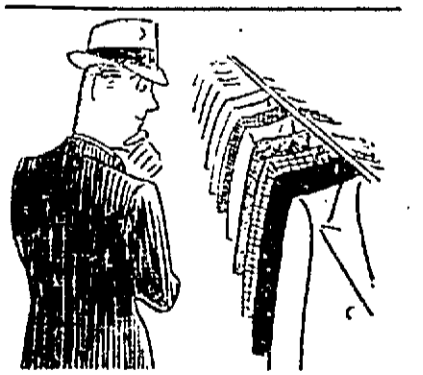

Form Colony at Ephraim For 'Budding Geniuses'

Sturgeon Bay, Wis. — Only "budding geniuses" will be admitted to a colony being formed at Ephraim. Young persons who show great promise in the fields of art, music, and literature will be admitted to the colony, which is to be formed in an abandoned CCC camp.

Sponsors of the plan to encourage young artists include Dr. Frederick Stock, director of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra; John Matter, Winnetka, Ill., an author; Mrs. Arthur Byfield, honorary president of the Chicago women's symphony orchestra; Walter Roosevelt, Chicago artist, and others.

Articles of incorporation have been drawn up for the colony and money has been raised by subscription to construct the camp by next summer.

The plan is to accept beginning artists, authors, and musicians whose talents have been recognized by schools or private instructors. They will be given a chance to study and practice at the camp.

Power Company Announces Cut in Commercial Rate

Change Permits Saving of $25,000 for 2,800 Customers in State

The Wisconsin Michigan Power company today announced a voluntary reduction in its commercial service rates. W. E. Schubert, general manager of the company, said that the change in the rate would amount to an annual savings of approximately $25,000 for the 2,825 customers who use this class of service, in Wisconsin.

An important change in the new rate which will benefit a large number of combination power and lighting customers is the removal of the connected load charge. Formerly all power equipment of more than two horsepower rated capacity carried a connected load charge of 30 cents net for each horsepower or fraction thereof. Under the new rate this connected load charge is eliminated entirely and combination power and lighting customers will benefit in proportion to the amount of power equipment being used.

There is no change in the minimum monthly charge for lighting or for combined lighting and power service. The new rate becomes effective with all service used subsequent to the first meter reading after December 1, 1937.

The monthly fixed charge will be 75 cents, net, plus a net energy charge of 5 cents per kwh. for the first 250 kwh., 3.75 cents for the next 1,000 kwh., and 2.4 cents for all electrical energy over 2,000 kwh.

Youth Sentenced To Reformatory

Must Serve 1 to 5 Years For Attempted Holdup At Filling Station

Joseph Kempinger, 19, 1036 Eighth street, Oshkosh, was sentenced to serve from 1 to 5 years in the state reformatory at Green Bay by Judge Thomas H. Ryan this morning in municipal court for assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to rob.

Kempinger attempted to hold up the attendant at the Progress Oil company service station, 224 N. Richmond street, Thursday night and was captured by Oshkosh police a short time later as he entered that city.

He fled from the station without taking any cash after he had forced the attendant, Hyman Horvitz, 1347 W. Washington street, to lie on the floor. Police were called and a description of the car driven by Kempinger was broadcast over the police radio system within a half hour of the broadcast. Kempinger was arrested.

Kempinger waived preliminary hearing Friday and pleaded guilty to the charge.

Home Lighting Contest Will Bring Visitors to See Appleton Decorations

A chance for Appleton to become widely known for its unique outdoor home decorations, a reputation that will bring visitors here during the Christmas season, is afforded by the Post-Crescent's Home Lighting Contest, Kenneth H. Corbett, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said today.

"Appleton can assume leadership in Christmas decorations of this type," Corbett said. "I'm sure that many people from nearby communities will enjoy driving into the city on evenings during the week before Christmas to see just what our citizens can do and are doing to make their homes attractive."

Thus, citizens of this city, by entering the contest, can not only derive enjoyment from their own decorations but also can share it with persons living outside the city who make Appleton the hub of many of their activities.

Certainly there could be no more beautiful sight than rows of pleasant homes decked with Christmas lights of many colors, lights that accentuate all the warmth and security of the American home, as reflected in the snow and ice that accompany Wisconsin winters, and carry out the true Christmas spirit of quiet, thoughtful wonderment.

Lighting Contest Editor, Post-Crescent, by midnight, Sunday, Dec. 19.

Twelve useful, valuable and attractive prizes will be awarded by the Post-Crescent at the conclusion of the contest. Three prizes, first, second and third place, will be given in each of the four divisions which are determined by the assessed valuation of competing homes.

Judging will be based on a system of 100 points, with 60 points or less for symmetry, beauty, originality and general artistic arrangement and 20 points or less for safety.

A group of judges, whose names will be made public soon, will devote their attention to the appearance of the homes. In their hands will be the rating of the home lighting displays on the 80-point scheme. Louis Luebbe, city electrician, will rate the displays for their safety features on the basis of 20 points. Safety is only one-fourth as important as appearance, according to comparison by points, but it may win or lose a contest.

Lights on the outdoor displays, which will range from simple, impressive lighted wreaths to electric dramatizations of the Christmas legend, must be turned on by Monday evening, Dec. 20. Judging will start that night and continue through Christmas Eve. The winners will be named and the prizes awarded after Christmas.

Columbus School First Graders Paint Playthings for Christmas

To Miss Elaine Jones' first grade youngsters at Columbus school, Christmas means doing something for more unfortunate children as well as receiving gifts from others.

Toy soldiers, wounded in sham battles, airplanes, which at one time or another, were damaged in nursery crashes, miniature dogs and other animals, which were injured in toyland accidents—all are being repaired and painted and will be given to children of needy families.

A toy shop has been built in the first grade room and all the pupils have donated their treasures to the common cause. Days are being spent with paint and brush making the toys presentable to gladden hearts on Christmas day.

Miss Jones is searching for one or two deserving families who can not afford toys for the children. The toys will be on display at the school until the families are located.

Dealers Open Sale of Yule Trees in Outagamie County

Christmas shoppers eager to get well-rounded, bushy yule trees have started their tours of local dealers early this year to take advantage of a large selection.

Although the annual rush for trees is not expected for about another week, many trees have already been sold, local dealers report. Emil Kramer, game warden for this district, states he has issued permits for more than 20 dealers in the county. The dealer's fee is $5. Applications for licenses also may be had from the county clerk and mailed in to the conservation department at Madison.

As in former years, trees of all sizes and shapes are being offered by dealers at prices ranging all the way from 25 cents to $4 and $5. The heaviest sale is expected to be in the $1 to $1.50 class.

Cut in State
Most of the trees being offered for sale in Appleton and vicinity were cut in northern Wisconsin forests. Several dealers also have trees shipped in from Michigan.

While many residents in the more northern regions of the state journey to the woods to cut their own yule trees, the majority of Outagamie county residents will be depending upon the dealers for them. Balsam trees are expected to be the most popular.

Electric lights will be more prominent as a Christmas tree decoration this year, dealers expect. There has been a tendency toward lighting small Christmas trees on the lawns during the last few years and at many homes the custom of having a tree indoors has been abandoned. However, the sale of trees this year is expected to be as large as for last Christmas, dealers state.

Fireman Uses Ladder, Pole to Rescue Cat

It is well even for a cat to look before it leaps but in case it doesn't, there always is the fire department ready for the rescue. A cat leaped into a tree in Bellaire court about 8:30 yesterday morning, prompted either by a luscious morsel of bird or else by a chase-loving dog. At any rate the cat reached a precarious perch and was unable to get back. Firemen put up a 35-foot ladder and brought the cat to safety. The actual rescue was made by Raymond Mutart and he saved himself from being scratched by using a long pole.

o'clock at the St. Joseph's church. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery. A prayer service will be held at 7:30 tonight by the Holy Name society at the funeral home. The body will be at the funeral home from this afternoon to the hour of services.

Health Queries Answered

Question: Why do all people have colds in changeable weather? Please explain through your column, Mr. L. J.

Answer: However all people do not have so-called colds. Thousands upon thousands go forth from overheated homes and offices without having colds. There must be a fertile field within every individual who cannot adapt themselves to changeable environmental conditions. This holds true with all disease. Normal resistance within each individual is what we all have to strive for. All schools of doctors agree upon this question. The question, however, arises where does the resistance come from and what is it? Chiropractic, the twentieth century healing science, teaches that structures of the body are not normal when something interferes with their supply of mental impulses or life force from brain to body. Such interference does occur as a result of vertebral misplacement in the cervical region of the spine. Scientific instruments prove that there is a continuity, function, life, between brain, which is constant, and body organs, which are variable due to this interference in the spine, thereby predisposing the body to disease as a result of this interference. The principle and practice of Chiropractic are simple in the same sense that all great fundamental truths are simple to the informed mind. Think and reason this proposition in your own mind. A periodic examination of your spine is the best kind of health insurance, for Chiropractic adds years to life and life to years. For your health app. phone 4319W

Overflow Crowd Enjoys 'Messiah' Performance

MEMORIAL CHAPEL was crowded beyond seating capacity last evening for the annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" given by the Schola Cantorum of Lawrence college under the leadership of Dean Carl J. Waterman. This choral organization, noted for its well-disciplined and enthusiastic singing, gave an unusually capable performance of those stirring choruses which make the Handel oratorio so universally popular.

Welcome indeed was "His Yoke Is Easy," which was sung with a buoyancy and a controlled enthusiasm that made it one of the high spots in the evening's presentation. Two other impressive choruses appearing this season, which had not been heard for several years, were "With His Stripes We are Healed" and "Surely He Hath Borne Our Griefs," the latter a chorus of peculiar beauty and solemnity.

Deserving of credit were those who carried the solo portions of the oratorio. Miss Betty Jane Winans, a senior student at Lawrence Conservatory, sang the soprano airs, and Miss Muriel Engelland, a junior at Lawrence college, was assigned the contralto role. Both young ladies exhibited a thorough mastery of their selections. Miss Winans' voice was particularly well-adapted to the florid "Rejoice Greatly," which she sang with evident enjoyment and unusually fine style. Miss Engelland's "O Thou That Telles" and "He was Despised" were received appreciatively by the audience.

Oshkosh. Christmas decorations were used for the dinner table. Arrangements for the affair had been made by the Misses Louisa Hansen, Ruth Schubert, Gertrude Hilgen, Grace Parish and Mabel Burke.

A pillow case card party will be given by Sons of the American Legion at 2:15 Tuesday afternoon and 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the American Legion club house, corner Superior and Hancock streets. Auction and contract bridge, schafskopf and dice will be played.

Menasha Cagers To Play Oshkosh Teams Tuesday

Preliminary Game Between 'B' Squads To Start at 7 O'clock

The hoppers will be placed in the woods, fields and marshes within a 6-mile radius of Neenah soon. The state conservation department will furnish feed, and donations obtained through a drive being carried on by the conservation club in conjunction with Winnebago land, also will be used to purchase feed.

About 15 members of the club constructed the hoppers each one of which will hold about 50 pounds of feed. The boys started work on them Wednesday and on Friday night finished painting them.

Those who took part were William Blank, Elmer Goodman, Jack Hesselman, John Harness, Sheldon Klutz, Leslie Smith, Boynton Schultz, Russell Reethen, Arthur Rudebeck, Tom Rogers, Alfred Sturges and Norman Sauer.

St. Mary Cagers Will Journey to Kaukauna Tonight

Menasha Squad to Engage In Second Non-Conference Game of Season

Menasha—St. Mary cagers will play their second game of the season away from home tonight when they invade Kaukauna in the first of a home and home series. The Zephyrs lost an overtime decision to Manitowish there in the opening of their season. Probable starters for St. Mary are Tony Will and Clayton Hopfensperger at forwards, Ruben Prunse at center, William Resch and Senbrenner at guards. Others who will undoubtedly see action are Picard, Griesbach, Hoks and Romnek.

The Kaukauna first string will include Cliff Venevnehoven and Bill Peterson at forward posts, Leland Lambie and Carl Giordana in the back court and Bill Alger at center. Others on the squad who have a chance to get into the fray are Mettner, Grogan, Bixsel, Bloch, Pendergast and McCarty.

No comparison can be made between the schools on comparative scores. Last year the Kavs took two games so far but defeated Appleton high of the Fox Valley conference Nov. 20 to 19 in a practice game at Kaukauna. The fact that St. Mary lost to Manitowish of the same conference in an overtime period might indicate a close game for tonight.

Power Company to Furnish Current For Waterworks

Neenah Commission Abandons Engines for 1-Year Period

Neenah — Using electricity furnished by the Wisconsin Michigan Power company, the municipal waterworks plant will abandon its two huge generating engines and will not generate its own power for at least a year, it was decided by the waterworks commission at a meeting Saturday afternoon at the city hall.

The commission drew a 1-year contract with the power company to supply electricity to operate the plant at the same rate as street lighting.

The commission is substituting electricity furnished by the power company for the two engines formerly used to generate power, because it was less efficient and dangerous to use the large engines. The commission's only alternative is to sell the large generators and buy smaller ones.

Under the former system the plant generated its own power with two engines which have a combined strength of 365 horsepower. Because of the excess power the plant was operated at intervals, requiring more chemicals to clear the city's drinking water.

For the last 60 days a 150-kilowatt transformer has been temporarily in operation at the plant for an experiment. Reports at the meeting indicated that the system worked satisfactorily.

Can't Prescribe Code For Domestic, Opinion

Madison — (P)—Attorney General Orland S. Loomis informed the state trade practice commission today that neither it nor the governor has any authority to prescribe a code for women and girls employed as domestics.

"The statute in effect gives the governor authority to promulgate codes for trades and industries that protect the interest of the consumer, prevent monopoly, promote competition and stabilize industries generally," Loomis said.

"Domestic service does not come within the purview of the term trades and industries as used in the act."

Loomis said that power to determine fair wages for women is vested in the state industrial commission.

In an opinion to the district attorney of Lincoln county Loomis held that county clerks should not issue a marriage license unless the certificate of both parties showing them to be free from syphilis is signed by a physician licensed to practice in Wisconsin.

National Labor Party Envisioned For 1940 Contest

State Party Formed in New Jersey; Similar Steps In Michigan

Washington — (P)—Establishment of a New Jersey labor party and steps toward a similar organization in Michigan occasioned new speculation today on the possibility of a national labor ticket in the 1940 presidential election.

Both CIO and American Federation of Labor representatives took part in the founding of the American Labor Party of New Jersey yesterday at Newark. The delegates to the founding convention declared they represented 150,000 organized workers.

No action was taken on the question whether the new party should back its own candidates in elections or endorse those of other parties.

Preliminary to establishing a Michigan Labor party, 250 union members formed at Detroit yesterday labor's non-partisan League of Greater Detroit.

Already Dominant
Organized labor, long important in politics, already has established itself as dominant in some localities.

The American Labor party, casting 482,450 votes, was a factor in the reelection this fall of Fiorello H. LaGuardia as mayor of New York.

Various other cities elected mayors who had support of labor organizations. A CIO ticket, although defeated, polled a large vote in Detroit.

Speculation on the possibility of a national labor party in 1940 has revolved chiefly about the future of the Democratic party.

LaGuardia Mentioned
Some observers have expressed the opinion that if the Democratic element which has been favorable to legislation backed by organized labor retains control of the party in 1940, there is little likelihood of a labor party candidate for president.

Others have suggested that a labor party might develop from the Progressive party of Wisconsin, headed by Governor Philip LaFollette and his brother, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, perhaps with one of the two as the presidential nominee.

LaGuardia has been talked of by some as the possible presidential candidate of a labor party, if one is formed.

Others have suggested that a labor party might develop from the Progressive party of Wisconsin, headed by Governor Philip LaFollette and his brother, Senator Robert M. LaFollette, perhaps with one of the two as the presidential nominee.

Offer Body of Infant Son In War on Mystery Malady

Chicago — (P)—The youthful parents of 12-day-old Daniel Ennesser, eleven victims of a mysterious baby malady in St. Elizabeth's hospital, offered the body of their first born today so that medical science might seek the cause of the intestinal outbreak.

John G. Ennesser, the father, said he and his wife, Angeline, 26, "thought it would help the other little babies" if doctors performed an autopsy on their child.

Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the board of health, said the autopsy would be performed by Dr. William Saphir, chief pathologist of Michael Reese hospital, and Dr. Lloyd Arnold, bacteriologist of the Illinois Department of Health.

Seven Others Stricken
The Ennesser babe died last night as medical science marshaled its forces to save seven other infants stricken with epidemic diarrhea.

Nineteen babies have been stricken with the disease, diagnosed as enteritis, or acute epidemic diarrhea, since Nov. 23 when the first death occurred. One infant, Sandra Traska, six weeks old, was taken home, apparently cured, but will be kept under care of health department doctors.

Hospital physicians, eight baby specialists and health officers were concentrating their efforts in saving the lives of two infants reported in critical condition.

Death of the Ennesser baby came at a time when scientists worked desperately to find the exact cause of the malady which has puzzled medical men for years.

Exhaustive laboratory tests were made to discover the source of the scourge. Dr. Richard H. Jaffe, director of the pathological institute of the Cook County hospital, who performed autopsies on two victims, said he believed the am Colonel Lindbergh and I do not want any publicity at all."

Shunned Passengers
"He told me he was going to keep to his room as much as possible. I continued to address him as 'Mr. Gregory' and each time I did so he smiled."

Fellow passengers said the Lindberghs were friendly but made it evident that they wished to be left to themselves.

They dined at the captain's table almost every night, with Captain Robert, the very Rev. Dr. Spencer Cecil Carpenter, dean of Exeter cathedral, Devonshire, England, and Captain J. A. Furer, assistant naval attaché at the American embassy in London and Mrs. Furer.

An echo of the Lindbergh kidnapping—most famous crime in American history—accompanied the Lindberghs' return. From New York, the Citizens' Protective League, a German-American organization claiming 50,000 supporters, sent telegrams to Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, and to Lindbergh asking that payment of the reward for apprehension of the kidnappers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., be "suspended" because "the real culprits have not yet been caught."

30 Claim Reward
Disposition of the $25,000 reward by the state has not been settled. There are 30 claimants.

The telegram to Lindbergh also asked that he "please do something" for Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, widow of the man who was executed in 1936.

Supporters of the theory that aviation lay back of Lindbergh's surprise trip pointed to the resumption of hearings in Washington next week on a proposal that the government subsidize trans-oceanic air lines by lending 75 per cent of the cost of building aircraft for foreign trade. Pan-American Airways, of which Lindbergh is technical adviser, has been represented as opposing the subsidies which, persons close to the maritime commission said, would be available to competitors of Pan-American, as well as to that company.

Lindbergh's explorations in science have been less publicized but equally as spectacular as his exploits in the air. He has won special acclaim for his work with Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller institute. In development of the artificial heart.

Badgers Against Roosevelt Plan To Cut Road Aid

Economies Would Result In Reduction of Wisconsin Allotment

Washington — (P)—President Roosevelt's proposal to curtail federal highway aid to states met opposition from Wisconsin congressmen.

Suggested as a means of achieving economies, the president's proposal, if approved, would mean that Wisconsin probably $4,881,335 for the next fiscal year (about the same amount it received for road aid in the current fiscal year) would be cut.

"This," said Representative G. R. Withrow, Progressive, "is a poor way to save money. It would disrupt the highway program in Wisconsin and every other state."

"If this aid is cut it will throw many men out of employment and increase relief and that will cost more than the saving in highway aid."

Senator Duffy, (Democrat), took the view that money spent on road building "is the best money we spend."

"It may be necessary to cut expenditures some but highway aid should be curtailed as little as possible," he declared.

Representative Amle, Progressive, reiterated his contention that the government must continue to spend money.

"Roosevelt 'Wrong'"
"I think the president is wrong," he added. "During the next year we will have to keep on spending and we get as much for our money in road work as we do in any other way."

Representative O'Malley (Democrat), said federal highway aid should not be reduced.

"That money gives a lot of man hours of labor," he said. "There are a lot of other things in government that could be discontinued, plumbing, and furniture were given most as much in federal gasoline taxes as the federal aid for the state amounts to."

Representative Gehrmann, Progressive, opposed any cut in road aid, saying:

"That is a work program that employs a lot of people with little material needed. We still have too many people needing a job to cut down this and if we do, it will mean they will have to be added to WPA and that will cost more money."

Guests of Representative Southoff (P) and Mrs. Southoff entertained at a party last week included Senator LaFollette, Leo Crowley, Wisconsin, chief of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, and Arthur J. Altmeyer of the social security administration.

The national park service informed Senator Duffy it had arranged to continue work of the CCC camp near St. Croix Falls, Wis., even though the present camp must be abandoned Dec. 15.

A "side camp" would be formed about the first of the year, park officials told the senator, and, while the personnel would be less than the existing camp, the "side camp" would be operated until the work was completed.

Pegler Wants Political Employes to Pay Taxes

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER
New York—On the basis of an old supreme court decision in a totally different kind of case, it is still held that the federal government has no right to levy an income tax on the pay of almost five million officials and employees of the states and their subdivisions.

The payroll for this horde of dead-heads, who have been getting their civilization at reduced rates at the expense of their neighbors, is estimated at three billion dollars a year, but the treasury has taken only a half-hearted interest in the case, because the returns would be petty by comparison with that which might be derived from an income tax on the return from tax-exempt bonds, federal, state and various.

If this exemption goes back to a remark by Justice Marshall made about a hundred years ago, before the income tax was ever proposed, he said that the "power to tax was the power to destroy," but he was discussing a case in which the state of Maryland was attempting to impose a prohibitive tax to prevent an agency of the federal government from operating in Maryland.

The imposition of the federal income tax on the salaries of governors, judges, state, county and city attorneys, teachers, engineers and commissioners by the hundred thousand would be no more destructive to the governmental body by which they are employed than the imposition of the same tax to the private employers whose hired help have been paying the tax for years.

If this taxing power is destructive, then, the private employer must be well-nigh indicted, for it has never even occurred to the most ardent tax-dodger among them to raise the point. The truth is that when the taxing power is used to the point of destruction there comes first a squawk and then, if the pressure isn't lifted, a fight. And if the income tax rates of the present day are not destructive to private enterprise they would be no more injurious to the states and their subdivisions.

An Old Exemption Is Suspended in New York
In addition to which it should be emphasized that a tax collected from an official or employee of an inferior government does not touch that government itself but the individual who draws the salary, as often as not a useless political baron who no more represents the dignity and sovereignty of the state than a coddle in a doughboy's shirt represents the authority of the commander in chief.

In New York state the attorney general has just rendered an opinion upholding a law passed by the last legislature suspending an old traditional exemption whereby 300 states officers and employees, mostly professional politicians, were excused from the state income tax as well as the federal. They now have to pay the state tax, although still immune to the federal, and the gain to the state will be about $275,000 a year. The exemption never did exist in law but only in opinion by two former attorneys general whose own immunities were affected by their decisions, and it crumbled like cigar ash the first time it was attacked.

It's A Beginning In War Against Moochers
This is the first victory worth recording in the scrap between the taxpayers and the class of moochers who live on them, and though small, it is a beginning, nevertheless. The contention that to tax the legally established salary for a political job is to reduce the salary and thereby violate the law is no longer heard with patience, in view of the fact that a private employee with a salary contract has always been subject to this tax since the amendment was adopted. Oshkosh Aviator Wins Laurels at Annual Air Races

Wittman's Average Speed At Miami Is 212.75 Miles Per Hour
Miami, Fla. — (P)—His silver-nosed red racer throttled back, S. J. Wittman, Oshkosh, Wis., speed merchant, rode to victory yesterday to polish off Miami's annual air races under a cloudy sky at the municipal airport.

Wittman, one of the most consistent money winners in the air racing business and an exceptionally cautious pilot, had no competition in the main event of the closing day of the three-day meet. The rest of the five free stock model ships, The Glenn H. Curtiss trophy, awarded annually, went to Wittman.

Narrow Escape

John E. Crowell, Charlotte, N. C., flying a monocoque, had a narrow escape mid-way of the race when, in negotiating a turn at an extremely low altitude, his ship slipped toward the ground.

Two crashes Friday took the lives of Rudy Kling and Frank Haines. Wittman's average speed was 212.75 miles an hour, more than 30 miles an hour faster than that of Harry Hammell, Austin, Tex., in second place. Bob Davis, Bloomington, Ill., was third in the grid, ten laps of the 5-mile triangular course.

Heavy weather, with a ceiling of only 300 feet at Key West, caused postponement until tomorrow of an air cruise to Havana planned today by a score of pilots as an aftermath of the all-American air maneuvers.

At the same time Jacqueline Cochran, who established a New York-Miami speed record of 4 hours 12 minutes, last week, delayed an attempt to seek new marks for 100, 50 and 25 mile closed courses.

Find Average Player Apt to 'Pass The Buck'

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The first National Self-Rating Bridge Examination is over, and I must say that I am enthusiastic over the results. Although the examination was essentially a self-rating device, some 1,200 readers scattered from one corner of the country to the other took advantage of my offer to grade their answers and set their final mark. Naturally, this will take me a few weeks, but as soon as possible, certificates bearing the final grade and class (master, expert, or advanced) will be mailed.

New for the announcement as to the method of classification. Readers will have noticed, of course, that the merit and credit system employed makes it possible for contestants to end with a final mark over 100. Obviously, then, this figure 100 does not refer to a percentage grade. Instead it is a sort of "pass" just as 72 or thereabouts is the par for a golf course. There is nothing to prevent a champion golfer from breaking par by several strokes, and nothing to prevent a bridge master from going over par in an examination such as that just conducted. Hence, after the most careful weighing of each individual question and the part attached thereto, I have set up the following table as the most accurate and definitive possible:

Dub Below 50
Weak average 51-60, inclusive
Middling 61-75, inclusive
Post-graduate 76-89, inclusive
Expert 90-99, inclusive
Master 100 and over

My fact finding has not yet been completed, but one thing I already have learned from a superficial reading of the answers sent in, that is that the average player bids too conservatively, also that he is inclined to dodge responsibility in close decisions by "passing the buck" to partner whenever possible. Later this week I will prove my point by referring to questions that brought this particular trait to light.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 spade Pass 2 no trump Pass
2 no trump Pass Pass

The team that bid as above did not do so well on this board! West opened a low diamond and declarer could run only eight tricks before relinquishing the lead to the club ace, whereupon he was swamped with West's established diamonds.

I report this bidding so that I can agitate against it. Duplicate players are much too inclined to play every hand in no trump. Admittedly, it is wise to lean in that direction, but when the responder can see that a game in partner's major suits is virtually certain (as South should have seen with this hand) it is ridiculous to forget all principles of rubber bridge in deference to so-called duplicate philosophy. South's additional reason for responding with no trump rather than a strong spade raise was that he "wanted all of his kings and tenaces let up to rather than through." This theory also has merit but only to an extent that does not conflict with the sounder theory that, given a good fitting suit, it is almost always possible to make at least one more trick with that suit as trump than at no trump.

It is true that in this hand there was an unfortunate duplication of distributions in the diamond suit. As the cards lay, obviously the bid of five spades was cold, and three no trump unmakeable.

Carelessness Cured After Search on Empty Stomach

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Put your cap on this morning, Sammy. It is raining and there is a cold wind."

"I can't find my cap."

"Can't find it? Did you hang it up?"

"No, I couldn't find it in school."

"O, you lost it. Do you know that is the third cap you have had in a month? Why can't you look after your things? Other boys don't lose their things."

"O, yes, they do, ma. Billy lost his mittens and—"

"Yes, and so did you. Your mittens and your caps and your sweater. And Adolph's sweater into the bargain. Something has to be done, young man. You look about the school for that cap. Put on your good one now. I can't have you out in a storm without a hat. But don't come home without it. Remember."

Sammy was late getting home that afternoon, and when he did arrive it was without his cap and rubbers.

"I couldn't find them. I looked everywhere. Somebody must have taken them. That's all. I can't help it if there are thieves about. They pick on me every time. They don't take anybody's things but just mine."

"Sammy, you talk nonsense. This has to stop. I shall go to school and ask your teacher to check up on you when you get to class, before you leave and every time you come or go. You are going to learn to take care of your belongings from now on if you don't learn another thing."

Mother and teacher talked it over. "I'll look him over when he comes in, and I'll see that he hangs up his coat and cap and sweater. You be sure he has his name in them all. I'll appoint a monitor to follow him up, and between us we will make him conscious that he has caps and rubbers and books and whatnot. When he has to come to my desk every time he comes in or goes out, and has to check up his things for the monitor four times a day, I think he will begin to remember."

About the second day of the new order Sammy came home in good time for lunch, all smiles and eagerness. "Where is my sweater?" said his mother. Sammy's face went blank. "Gee! I guess I lost it. I must have left it on the fence when I stopped to tie my shoe."

Uncle Ray's Corner

In an Italian City

Milan, Italy. Soon after I crossed the border of Italy, I noticed an Italian boy about 8 years of age. He was dressed as a "little soldier."

Benito Mussolini, the self-made ruler of Italy, is trying to teach the people to be ready to fight. Many people believe he is willing to throw his country into war to achieve wealth, and to his own personal power. If he does that, he very likely will bring about his own downfall.

The Last Supper is one of the world's most famous pictures. It shows Jesus and the 12 apostles eating their last meal together on the evening before the day of the crucifixion. To make it possible to see the faces of all the apostles, the artist left the near side of the table vacant, and put all the figures on the other side or at the ends.

The artist was Leonardo da Vinci.

Establish Fund for Beauty Aids

BY ELSIE PIERCE

It must sound downright selfish, at a time when unselfishness rules heart and mind, to so much as suggest that you, your precious self, should head the gift list. But, if it's beauty you're giving away, I think it's swell for the soul, to say nothing of your good looks. If you can't stretch your budget a bit, and if you haven't established a nonsense fund, then do a little snipping here and there. And, with the saved savings, treat yourself to the one little beauty extravagance you've wanted most this last year, but felt you just didn't dare. Do it, by all means, unless you're very sure some one will catch the thought waves and do it for you.

Perhaps it isn't an extravagance at all, but a single cream or lotion or a compact, a kit or bath dusting powder, a perfume or an atomizer, an absolute essential or a little luxury—it doesn't matter. Get it and watch the warm feeling deep down inside at the thought of possessing it, at last.

Nonsense Fund

Throughout the country people have Christmas funds. It's a matter of a very nominal amount each week, and then come time for the season's gifts and greetings, it comes in very handy and fills many a bill. I like to call mine "nonsense fund" though it goes for a good deal that is more important than mere "nonsense." But I do think such a fund for oneself, just to get a few things that you honestly have wanted but felt there was something else more important that had to come first, such a fund helps to keep one young almost as surely as cosmetics, as surely as buying a new coat or dress. If it is a beauty essential you have denied yourself, then you should certainly get it for the good it will do your looks. But, even if it is something you can live without, like eyeshadow flecked with gold dust, or fragrant foam for your bath, or perfume in a shocking package, or soap in an odd shape... so long as it will please you to own it, do treat yourself to it!

If you are giving beauty to a special friend for Christmas, include in the package a note to her or let on reducing "Reduce by Diet" (Booklet 201) and "Reduce by Exercise" (Booklet 202). These booklets cost ten cents EACH. Send for them giving your name and full address to the Bell Library, care of this newspaper, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

AFTER BUSINESS HOURS

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: My employer's daughter is to be married soon, her engagement having been announced while I was away on a holiday. I have worked for her father for more than twelve years and naturally feel that I would like to show the interest I have in this engagement. May I write a note to her and include my mother in sending best wishes, as mother knows her slightly, and may I go so far as to send her love on this occasion?

Answer: You may of course include your mother's good wishes with your own and it will also be perfectly natural to send your love if, through these years, your feeling toward each other has been one of increasing interest and affection. On the other hand, if she came into the office very seldom and if your chief interest now is because of your long association with her father and not really because of any personal affection for her, then I think sending your love might be considered a little overdone.

Dear Mrs. Post: I own a shop in this comparatively small city and through my business naturally come in contact regularly with a good many people. None of these customers are social friends or acquaintances. But it isn't possible in a town of this size to go to the movies, or to church or anywhere in fact, without seeing them, and while I do not consider myself on a social footing with them, I always recognize them because I feel that it is only polite to do so. My sister, on the other hand, has

Dix Deplores Cash Value Now Attached to Romance

BY DOROTHY DIX

Evidently Cupid has gone commercial and attached a price tag to his arrows. Every newspaper that you pick up contains an account of some discarded lover who is suing his former sweetie for the money he spent in courting her or seeking to recover the hope chest he gave her or of some girl who is demanding to be recompensed in good hard cash for the time she wasted on some lad who finally sidestepped the altar.

This is sad reading for us oldsters who are incorrigibly romantic and who like to think that, no matter how sordid and calculating we have become, the blood of youth runs hot and swift, and that boys and girls do not count the cost of their emotions and value each thrill at so much per thrill. All for love and the world well lost. That sort of thing, you know.

So it is discouraging to learn that when the modern Romeo goes a-wooing he does not wear next to his heart the withered rose of olden times, but carries in his breast pocket, right over the cardiac region, a little account book in which he carefully sets down the price of the shaves and haircuts, the new suit, the candy, flowers, movie tickets and gasoline he has paid out to find favor in her eyes.

It is even more devastating to find out that the current Juliet, as always felt that I ought to wait for them to recognize me first and then I am presuming on the most business acquaintance by forcing their recognition of me in public. Because I've always felt that my sister misses a great many joys in life by taking the darkest outlook, I'd like very much to have your opinion.

Answer: This is one of those questions which depend for the answer upon the individuals concerned. But under usual circumstances, with normal, kindly people, you would be right to say "Good evening" or "Good morning" or "Good afternoon" whenever you come face to face with them. You rather make the professional distinction by saying "Good afternoon" or "Good evening" instead of "How do you do?" and you would naturally not go out of your way to attract their attention. When I said there were exceptions, it is true that in almost every community there are a great number of snobs, and since you are in business it would be a great mistake to lose any customers who may be not only good customers but snobs as well. Therefore, those who are very impersonal in their business dealings with you would better perhaps be given the chance to speak first.

backs. These were such hold-ups that in many states they have been barred by law on the principle that those who sit in at the love game know it for the gamble it is and, if they lose, are entitled to no comeback.

Heretofore the breach-of-promise suit and the love balm suit have been strictly feminine rackets, but apparently men are muscling in on them, for they are beginning to make women pay for the time-honored privilege of changing their minds. And if when Arabella breaks an engagement she doesn't send the ring and all the portable presents back, they send the sheriff after her. And that is the last expiring sigh of romance and chivalry.

New London—New London teams lost two out of three basketball games at the Washington High school gym yesterday afternoon. A 6-point lead in the first quarter spelled defeat for Mike's Tavern in a tussle with the Kraft Cheese team from East Green Bay. The visiting squad got the jump in the first period with a 6-0 defensive and added nine more to New London's in the second period to lead by three points. The last half was scored evenly.

In the second game the Hatten Lumber company squad managed by Louis Barlow defeated the Hortonville gang 36 to 16. The Lumber lads trailed 2 to 2 at the end of the first period but piled up an increasing lead thereafter. Bob Krause and Dave Freuburger counted six and five hoops respectively. After swamping the Black Creek Merchants 12 to 3 in the first quarter Johnsons Service cagers gradually gave way to a 28 to 31 defeat in the final game of the afternoon. Ten markers in the second period shaved the margin to 18-13, ended the third 19 to 20 and in the fourth stanza the Creekers took the game in an exciting finish.

Future Farmer Squad Trims Waupaca Cagers

New London—New London Future Farmer basketballers defeated Waupaca 39 to 17 in a game at the Washington High school gym Friday evening. The game opened the Waupaca County Agricultural league which follows a convenient independent schedule. New London plays Marion there Friday night and has games scheduled with Oshkosh and Omro outside the county. Three complete teams saw action for New London. Starting were Leland Dobberstein and Keith Finch at forwards; William Madden, John Collier and Walter Thorn, guards. Carrying on were Lloyd Davis and Robert Hutchinson, forwards; Vern Wilson, center; Ray Baerwald and Warren Larson, guards. Also playing were Calvin Larson, Dan McLaughlin, Dave Wilson, Gerald Murphy.

Future Farmers Receive Awards for Project Work

New London—Agricultural letter awards for outstanding project work were presented to 17 boys of the New London Future Farmers of America at the annual Parent-Son Banquet of the organization at Washington High school Saturday night. In addition pins were presented to 20 Green Hand candidates and 19 received emblems of the Future Farmer degree.

More than 200 parents and boys were present at the dinner and program which was held in the high school gymnasium. Girls of the home economics classes served the dinner under the direction of Miss Gertrude Hoffman.

The project work of the New London chapter was praised by J. A. James, of the college of agriculture at Madison, who was the principal speaker. Boys of this area are fortunate in having the opportunity to take an agricultural course in high school and he said, the Future Farmer organization promises to fill the need for leadership in the field of agriculture.

Records show that most agricultural students find a vocation in the field in one phase or another. Mr. James encouraged the students. He said a survey several years ago revealed that 71 per cent of boys from 20 to 25 years then on farms had never been to high school. Girls in the same class numbered 60 per cent. He emphasized the need of academic subjects along with agriculture.

Yule Decorations Go Up This Week

Committee Collects $130 For Project at New London

New London—Street decorations, different from previous years and more elaborate, will be erected in New London's business section by Tuesday or Wednesday of this week according to Mayor E. W. Wendlandt.

More than $130 in cash contributions was solicited from New London merchants, business and professional men Saturday afternoon by a self-appointed committee of three aldermen, Harry Emans, Frank Meating and Lynn Springmire, at the instigation of Mayor Wendlandt. Theodore Knapstein was given responsibility for the decorations.

The action was taken when the New London Chamber of Commerce announced it would not bear the cost of decorations as in previous years and a request for a $50 appropriation from the city was denied in a tie vote by aldermen.

All aldermen agreed to the desirability of the decorations but half the council considered the project apart from the city's responsibilities and too much for the city to bear in its financial condition considering other curtailments which had been made during the year. The soliciting committee were members of that half of the council.

Little Progress Made in Attempts To Settle Strike

Picketing at Plant Will Continue, President Of Union Says

New London—Little progress has been made toward ending the strike at the Hamilton and Sons Cannery company plant which has been in progress for nearly two weeks. Henry Hoag, newly elected president of the cannery local union, said Monday picketing would be continued until grievances complained of are removed. Mr. Hoag was elected president of the local last week to succeed Donald Wendt, who was temporary president.

The strike was called, Mr. Hoag said, because of alleged "unfair labor practices" and to bring about an increase in pay. He said Hamilton women employees have been receiving 27 1/2 cents an hour, and that men were paid 32 1/2 cents an hour, a few 37 1/2 cents and a few from 45 to 50 cents.

According to Henry E. Hamilton, president of the company, a very small number of men were receiving 32 1/2 cents an hour. He said men were receiving 35 1/2 cents, 37 1/2 cents, 42 1/2 cents and 47 1/2 cents. He said the 27 1/2 cents paid to women employees is 5 cents an hour above the state requirement.

The union is demanding wages and working conditions prevailing in other unionized canneries in this section. Mr. Hoag said a minimum of 40 cents an hour is being asked for women, except in the canning room where conditions demand 47 1/2 cents. For men they ask a minimum of 60 cents per hour up to 85 cents for the more highly skilled types of work. They also ask that

CHALLENGE TO CHIZZLEWITS

THERE once was a merchant named Chizzlewit who trimmed his tree every Christmas and his customers every day.

He was a canny creature, this Chizzlewit, and knew how to win a customer by guile. The shirts he sold were cheaply woven, packed with powder to make them seem firm. To conceal their inferiority he told customers that he always wore them himself. In the glassware department he "made up" for poor quality by giving a set of pretty paper doilies with every purchase. He knew many clever tricks and used them without reserve.

Chizzlewit never advertised. He knew too well he could never fool people for long in print.

Advertising must live up to its own claims. That is why you can have full confidence in goods consistently advertised. If the maker has a worthy produce, fairly priced, he wants as many people as possible to know about it. If the product is unworthy, the printed word will only expose it sooner.

Christmas, and all around the calendar, read advertising. Makers and merchants stake their reputation, in cold black type, that what you read is true.

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK.—(AP) What possibly is the most effective scoring combination in football history—Cliff Battles, the ball carrying will of the wisp, and Sammy Baugh, the peerless passer—had shot the surprising Washington Redskins through to the championship of the Eastern division of the National Professional football league.

NEW ARMY COACH
Captain William H. Wood (above) former Army backfield coach and a 12-letter man during his career as an athlete, was appointed head coach of football at the United States Military Academy. He is now stationed at Leavenworth, Kas.

Sammy and Cliff and the rest of the remarkable Redskins did it the terrific way yesterday, terrorizing the New York Giants, 49 to 14, before 58,000 enthralled fans at the Polo Grounds. Among those who witnessed the electrifying battle were 7,000 wild-eyed Washington rooters, who ripped up the goal posts and everything.

Bears Trounce Cards
The way Cliff and Sammy cut didoes behind their savagely thrusting forward wall, it is difficult to picture them as levers next Sunday, when they meet the Chicago Bears, champions of the Western division, at Chicago's Wrigley field in their play-off for the league title. The Bears, with nothing at stake, steam-rolled the Chicago Cardinals, 42 to 28, in their final yesterday.

Cliff the runner and Sammy the thrower demoralized the Giants. Between them, they chopped the New Yorkers' defense into kindling wood, and it previously had been regarded as one of the stoutest defenses in the game.

Battles, a wraith in silk panties, carried the ball 170 yards in 24 tries from scrimmage, not counting a 76-yard run-back of an intercepted pass. Baugh completed 11 passes for a total gain of 135 yards, running his total of completions for the season to 81 and breaking the previous league record of 77.

It was a crazy game. First the Washingtons scored three touchdowns, slick and clean and without any breaks. Then, at the start of the second half, the Giants took to the air, with Ed Danowski tossing, and scored twice in a hurry. That made it only 21 to 14, and the Giants were back in the game.

That was when the Redskins proved their greatness. Battles took off the wraps again and plugged the pigskin down to New York's 43. Baugh then drifted back, faked a short pass to draw in the Giants' secondary, and whipped a long one into the arms of Ed Justice, who was away by himself. That whipped the Giants.

America OUT-OF-DOORS

ORGANIZE A WINTER SPORTS CLUB

By Elton Jessup
A GOOD way to start a winter sports club is to find out how somebody else has done it. There are successful examples galore all the way from various parts of Maine to Seattle and Vancouver, B.C. and as far south as Los Angeles.

The first essential is a real interest in getting outdoors in winter, and there's no lack of that. Ask the New England Council, which has done much to encourage such interest. They say that in their own locality there were 279 winter resort hotels open last winter, which is about twice as many as the winter before. A few years ago you'd have done well to find a dozen.

Among successful examples of forming clubs, one can learn much from the Dartmouth College Outing club. Here is a splendid winter sports organization that started with nothing but interest and energy through the efforts of only one man. In the year 1910 a student by the name of Fred Harris started Hanover, N. H. by appearing on the campus on a pair of skis, a home made pair at that. Skies in those days were as scarce as the dodo.

Idea Spreads
Harris' quaint idea of enjoyment spread to two or three of his friends and they got into the habit of taking Saturday and Sunday skiing trips through the hills. Now and again some other student would join them out of curiosity and quickly became a convert. The size of the party grew. One day they stumbled upon a deserted shanty at the base of Moose Mountain. A shelter is a highly comfortable thing to possess in winter. As the shanty was a convenient distance from Hanover they could use it every weekend, and they decided to operate in it. They lugged out from above with a good deal of puffing and pulling, an old iron stove. The shanty was furnished.

It has not as yet occurred to them to form a club. But the essentials of a club were present and the idea naturally cropped up of its own. There were interest, comradeship, and now a club house. Such were the beginning of the now famous Dartmouth Outing club. Today, this club owns in its own right several pieces of property and about a dozen well furnished comfortable cabins, scattered at various points through the hills between Hanover and the White Mountains. Most of the Dartmouth students are members and to these cabins ski various groups during winter week-ends.

The success of this ski and snowshoe club spread. Williams college, inspired by example, formed a club of the same sort. Various other colleges in New England, New York and elsewhere have followed suit. One of the results of all this interest is that skiing, which was formerly unknown, has become a major college sport. Another result is the now important Intercollegiate Winter Sports Union.

The Dartmouth Outing club is a perfect example of what can be accomplished by a few individuals banding themselves into a club instead of continuing to operate individually. As a club, they could definitely plan, progress, become a power, interest others, and be in a position to safeguard their own interests. They could also get money. They naturally needed money, and as their plans looked good, they got it.

Winter Sports on Boom

Nowadays, winter sports are on the boom. Interest in them is far more general than when Harris and his friends formed their club, and for this reason the formation of any such club is just that much more easy. The need is as great, if not even greater. That club houses are not essential is proved by the number of successful winter sports clubs that don't possess them. But there must be organization, even to distribute needed where and how information. You're glad enough to get hold of a good map of a certain ski trail that tells you to be careful at a certain point not to run off the edge of the cliff or into the lake. That's one of the many useful services performed by a club.

Take as another detail the new popular "snow trains." You or I as individuals wouldn't have much luck if we went to the New York Central Railroad and told them we wanted a snow train to run from Schenectady to North Creek, New York. But the Schenectady Winter Sports club doesn't seem to have any trouble in getting this train when they need it.

If there isn't a winter sports club in your town, form one. And if there is a winter sports club, join it. Copyright, 1936, North American Sportsman's Club, Inc.

National Ski Group Clashes With International Body on Pro Question

MILWAUKEE.—(AP) The International Ski Federation, European governing body, was asked by the National Ski Association yesterday to reconsider its decision against participation in the 1940 Olympics because of the ruling of the International Olympic Committee in refusing to recognize ski teachers as amateurs.

Adoption of the resolution, placing the national group in opposition to the international division, followed a lengthy discussion on professionalism. The general spoken attitude of the meeting was opposed to ranking the teachers in the amateur class, delegates claiming foreign skiers had endorsed and sold ski equipment. They said they regarded this as professional.

Action on this and other measures took place at the association's thirty-third annual convention held here Saturday and Sunday.

Will Investigate
On this same question the national association appointed a committee to investigate the amateur status of visiting foreign skiers who have sponsored ski equipment and ski clothing.

Bids for the final 1940 Olympic tryouts were advanced by Leavenworth, Wash., and Anaconda, Mont., but no action will be taken until the winter Olympics committee meets in New York at a later date. Announcement will be made in 1939. A six-man committee, appointed yesterday, will receive and forward invitations from places desiring the trials.

The association approved a plan to measure national ski jumping tournaments in feet as well as in meters.

Two Bowl Coaches Were "Fired" Off Last Jobs

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK.—(AP) Those Chicago Pictures showing Burleigh Grimes smoking a pipe with a regulation bowl didn't make a hit with Brooklyn fans. They fear it indicates the Dodgers are slowly returning to normalcy.

The North Dakota school which fired Stubby Allison, California's Rose Bowl coach, doesn't know what it is to have a real red face. . . . The University of Nevada gave the air to Buck Shaw, coach of Santa Clara's unbeaten Sugar Bowl team, not once, but twice—once as freshman and once as varsity coach. . . . Some of the alumni out there still are looking for the guy who fired Buck. . . .

Reliable sources say Stuffy McGinnis, ex-big league star, will leave Norwich (Vt.) University to coach baseball at Cornell. . . . Little Davey O'Brien, Texas Christian's spark plug, may not be the best back in the Southwest conference, but he certainly is the busiest. . . . In their ten games, the Frogs ran 730 plays from scrimmage. . . . O'Brien was either the ball carrier, passer or kicker on 486. . . . He lugged the ball 166 times, passed 231 times and kicked 63 times, besides attempting three field goals. . . .

Coltich or pro football. . . . The Polo Grounds was sold out yesterday for the first time since the baseball season—and the pros did it. . . . Write your own ticket. . . . Washington certainly turned on the juice. . . . Between them, Cliff Battles and Sammy Baugh had the Giants crazy. . . . Battles is the best running back in the league for our money, and Baugh is every bit as good as they said he was.

There are two R. Johnsons on the Pitt basketball team. . . . Both are listed in the lineup as "R. Johnson No. 1 and R. Johnson No. 2." Tommy Farr, who is due this week to teach Schmeling and Thomas, has been cleaning up with theater appearances in England at $1,000 to $1,500 a throw. . . .

Henry Crisp, Alabama line coach, will make his fifth trip to the Rose Bowl with the tide for New Year's day. . . . The Henry Armstrong-Enrico Venturi fight in the Garden Dec. 17 is definitely off because Armstrong is too homesick for Los Angeles. . . . That squib about two Harlan (Ky.) high school teams using coal dust to mark off a snow-covered eridron made folks up around Worcester, Mass., yawn. . . . Seems they pulled the same stunt on Dec. 13 last year.

First Midwest Wrestling Tourney Will be Held at Lawrence, March 5

THE first annual Midwest conference wrestling tournament will be held at Alexander gymnasium of Lawrence college, on March 5 in conjunction with the annual swimming tournament.

It was decided at a meeting of Midwest coaches and faculty representatives at Chicago Friday and Saturday.

Lawrence was represented at the meeting by Dean John Mills, president of the conference, Athletic Director A. C. Denney and Coach Paul Derr.

It was felt that wrestling had progressed far enough in the various schools to undertake a meet and as the swimming meet is scheduled here in March the wrestlers and swimmers could travel together.

Coaches and athletic directors held a session Friday in advance of the regular meeting of the conference and agreed to make the gathering a semi-annual affair, draw their resolutions and present them at the general meeting with faculty members on the next day. Mory Eby of Coe was named president of the group and A. C. Denney of Lawrence secretary.

Conference football schedules for 1938 and 1939 were adopted by the schools. A round robin schedule has been in vogue for several seasons and next fall Lawrence drops Cornell and takes on Coe. In 1939 the Vikings drop Monmouth and pick up Knox. Conference games in 1938 will be with Monmouth, Coe, Carleton, Ripon and Beloit. In 1939 they will be with Coe, Knox, Carleton, Ripon and Beloit.

Cornell was officially awarded a trophy for winning the 1937 football title. The team was undefeated in conference play.

Coaches went on record as commending Joe Koffend, Lawrence college publication sports editor, for his efforts in getting a poll on an all-conference team. They also approved the Lawrence suggestion that Koffend be permitted, through the Lawrence college publicity office, to compile scoring statistics and standings for the season, and the stories be released through the Viking publicity office.

ning. Honors went to Mrs. Lloyd Pinkowsky, Mrs. Roy Melver and Mrs. Matt Dain Jr. The next meeting will be in the form of a Christmas party on Thursday evening, Dec. 16, at the home of Mrs. Dain.

Mrs. Louis Schall entertained her bridge club Wednesday evening, when three tables were in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. Eric Strutz and Miss Myrtle Rockman.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Metzendorf left Friday for Ashland, where they will attend the funeral of their niece, Phyllis Metzendorf, 12, who died Thursday following an operation for appendicitis. Survivors are her father, Martin Metzendorf, and several brothers and sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rulshof entertained friends at dinner Thursday evening at their home on N. Twelfth street. Bridge followed at two tables, with Mrs. Lloyd Scheider winning high honors.

Mrs. John Buehrens was hostess to her bridge club Wednesday evening.

127 Accidents on Highways During Year in County

Traffic Officer Speaks At Maple Group Schoolhouse

Waupaca.—Earl Polzin, traffic officer for Waupaca county, was the principal speaker at a community gathering in the Maple Grove schoolhouse Friday evening. His talk was a resume of happenings reported to the sheriff's department during the year, rules for driving and suggestions as how to avoid the most common causes of accidents. An open forum concluded his talk.

Mr. Polzin reported a total of 127 accidents during the year with 114 injured, 13 of them seriously and 13 fatalities. Of the fatalities one happened at the overhead on Highway 49 when the driver went to sleep another was crossing a street in Iola, one died of heart disease when his car crashed into a tree at Big Falls; five were killed because someone failed to stop at an arterial; 2 were killed when they were driving too fast around a corner and lost control of the car; A pedestrian was killed walking along the highway; A child was run over by a truck and an elderly woman was killed while crossing the street.

According to Polzin, 60 per cent of the accidents happen on straight roads, left hand turns being responsible for the majority of accidents. The next largest percentage are those where right-of-way is questioned at intersections and highways; 60 per cent of the accidents are on state and federal highways; 20 per cent on country roads; 20 per cent in cities. Male drivers are in the cause of 75 per cent of the accidents, the other 25 per cent attributable to female drivers. More accidents are caused by persons between the ages of 30 and 40, and the next largest number between the ages of 17 and 25, Polzin stated.

While 60 per cent of the serious accidents happen after dark, 65 per cent of less serious ones are during daylight hours, 10 per cent at dusk and 25 per cent after dark.

Mr. Polzin will speak at Iola high school Monday afternoon.

Auto Crashes Guard Rail, Falls 59 Feet; Occupants Not Hurt

Waupaca.—Slippery roads caused a car owned and driven by John Straub, 22, Lone Rock, to crash through the guard rail of the overhead bridge on Highway 49, just inside the city limits, and drop a distance of 59 feet where it landed on its side badly damaged, but causing no serious injuries to Straub nor to his companion, David Straub, a cousin. Nearly 37 feet of guard rail and two fence posts were broken by the crash.

Straub had been at Scandinavia and was returning to Waupaca where he works as a prison guard at the penitentiary. The accident occurred at 5:30 Thursday evening.

Expect Cubs and Pirates Will Make Deal Tomorrow

BY PAUL NUCKELSON
CHICAGO.—(AP) If no news is good news there's bound to be a lot of happiness for the paying baseball customers before the three-day meeting of the diamond traders is over Wednesday night.

Nothing of importance happened in the major league playing mart that the traders developed flat feet and bunions from standing around hotel lobbies waiting for the others to surrender a million-dollar player for an autograph and some buttons. In fact, Babe Herman of Brooklyn outfield fame turned out to be the only business by signing to play for the New York Giant farm in Jersey City.

As the managers again took up their vigil behind potted palms and in telephone booths today, there was a growing suspicion that Brooklyn, after all, had Van Mungo and was stuck with him. The Dodgers want far too much money for their runaway star of the hill and

THE CHARACTERS

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair, has fallen in love with her step-father.

Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, is openly attentive to Nina.

Henry, Nina's tall, plump, youthful mother, is crazy about Richard, her new husband.

David, a young auto salesman, adores Nina and has urged her to marry him.

Chapter 17
S. O. S. To David

Richard's eyes were less stormy and a little of the amusement that always lurked there, had returned.

"I know, darling, but don't say it." He laid a finger against her lips that were still throbbing. "This is our hour--we can't undo it by saying how wrong it is. Let's instead, make it as beautiful that we'll always remember it as... beauty."

He laughed that low laugh of his that began way down in his throat. "Whoa, there, sweet... I can see you're beginning to think, and that's quite fatal."

His cure was sure-fire.

Nina had not been capable of consecutive speech or thought since he had first stood up and moved the backgammon table away. And this time when he freed her, she was so completely under his spell, that though she found words, it was as though she were hypnotized.

She laughed a laugh that seemed to come from a very far off.

"And I lay up in my bed and reasoned it all out so comfortably, that I didn't really love you. Oh, no! I even used arithmetic... on my fingers..."

They laughed together.

"... And when I sat at breakfast, and you came in all handsome and beautiful in that black dressing gown of yours, with silver dragons on it, I said, 'Nina, my child, snap out of this schoolgirl crush of yours, will you?'... Imagine, Turn to Page 19

Kaukauna Squad To Play Tonight Against St. Mary's

Non-Conference Game Will Get Underway At 8 O'clock

Kaukauna — Coach Paul E. Little's Kaukauna High school basketball team will open the season tonight at the high school gymnasium against St. Mary's of Menasha in a non-conference attraction. The first conference game will be played here Friday night with the Menasha Bluejays providing the opposition. Tonight's contest will begin at 8 o'clock, with a preliminary tilt scheduled for 7.

Beginning the season with a squad which had only one regular, Cliff Vanevenhoven, a forward, back from last year, Little has developed a combination which will start at least the first games on the Kaw schedule.

This probable first team has Vanevenhoven and Peterson at forwards, Bill Alger at center, and Carl Giordana and Leland Lambie at guards. Peterson, Vanevenhoven and Lambie are seniors, and Giordana and Alger are freshmen. The team averages about six feet tall.

The players have shown a steady improvement from the first practice sessions of the year up to a scrimmage with Appleton Friday afternoon, when the regulars outscored Appleton 20 to 19. A continuation of their play Friday should result in a win over the St. Mary's cagers. St. Mary's is strong, however, as is shown by their dropping a close game to Manitowoc, one of the leaders of the Fox River Valley conference, and anything but the best the Kaws are capable of will mean opening the season with a loss.

Coach Little's main worry this year, with the first five fairly well set, is the developing of reserves, a matter which, with the center jump eliminated, is a matter of more importance than ever before. The squad is lacking in men capable of playing a game fairly well equal to that of any of the regulars. John Grogan and Neil McCarty are capable replacements at guards, but after that the Kaw reserve strength falls off alarmingly. With a much faster game this year, substitutions must be made more often, and this lack of reserve strength will in all probability cost the Kaws several close contests.

200 Signers Ask for Windbreak on Bridge

Kaukauna — A petition containing over 200 signatures has been received at the office of Lester J. Benzoni, city clerk, asking that a windbreak be erected over the Lawe street bridge. The petition claimed the requested structure a "public service and convenience for the people, particularly during the heavy winter months." The matter is expected to come before the council at its next meeting.
